Population of 115,000 unlikely: planner

by BILL HILL

Arlington Heights is a "boom town" no more.

Population projectsions made for the village only two and a half years ago said Arlington Heights would have 115,000 residents by the year 2000, but planners now saiy that is very unlikely.

"So many things have happened since then. I don't see us ever getting that big," Village Planner Joseph Kesler said.

Arlington Heights officials last month were forced to face the fact that the village's population no longer is accelerating as fast as it has since 1950 when it more than doubled in six years, going from 8,700 in 1950 to 19,000 in 1956.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS' population jumped 125 per cent between 1960 and 1970, going from 27,878 to 62,568. Another 6,700 persons were added between 1970 and 1972.

But now the growth rate has slowed considerably, according to preliminary figures from a special census taken this summer. That headcount sets the village's population at 70,997 — an increase of only 1,794 persons, or a 2.5 per cent jump in four years.

The village administration was surprised by the small increase because in previous years it had predicted quite accurately what the special census would show. This year it projected a jump of at least 4,600 residents, based on birth rates, construction of new housing units and annexations.

The administration originally planned to ask the census bureau to recount 14 sections of the village where the population dropped more than 10 per cent from the 1972 figures, but the village board voted against it after a census spokesman said she doubted a recount would show a significant increase.

"IN TOWNS THIS size we have been finding a drop. We usually try to talk older towns out of taking a census because they don't taken into account the tremendous drop in the number of persons per household," said Edna Kuhlmann, supervisor of the census bureau's Chicago office.

"Arlington Heights grew tremendously where they had new growth. But they must consider that the population in stable areas (of the village) is dropping. It's a fact that when kids get old enough, they leave home," Mrs. Kuhlmann said.

Arlington Heights should consider the increase of 1,794 persons "a tidy gain," she said. Several older Cook County municipalities have shown a population drop, she said.

"Any towns with housing 15 years or older in it are losing population in those areas," Mrs. Kuhlmann said.

Two other statistical reasons for the declining populations in "established" communities are that there are more single-family households now and census counts nationwide show that there are less persons per household, she said.

THE AVERAGE NUMBER of persons per household has dropped steadily since 1940, from 3.67 to 2.94, Mrs. Kuhlmann said. A main factor in that drop is that the number of one-person households has increased 41 per cent.

John Best, Arlington Heights planning engineer, said he still questions the population count shown by the recent special census because of the size of homes being built in the village.

Approximately 4,000 new homes have been buit in the village since the 1972 census was taken and most of them have three to five bedrooms, he said.

A new trend in the housing market may cause the village's population to grow less than had been anticipated.

Best reported that in recent weeks developers have requested changes in zoning from multi-family use to single-family use for three parcels in the village. The three sites total about 100 acres.

According to the latest census bureau statistics, the average number of persons per single-family home is about three and the average number of persons per multi-family unit is about 1.5. But the population density is higher on land developed for multi-family use.

For example, a 10-acre parcel in most cases will have 30 to 35 single-family homes if zoned for single-family development, or 100 to 150 apartment units if zoned for multi-family use. Using current census bureau population averages, such a 10-acre parcel would have 105 residents if devel-

RENOVATION of a store-front at 1231 E. Golf Rd. to house a Northwest suburban driver testing station will be completed Oct. 1, said J. Emil Anderson & Sons, which is leasing the space to the state. However, a spokesman for Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett said Thursday a date has not yet been set for the opening of the testing center. Written and road tests will be given at the facility but license plates will not be sold.

Patty's prison sentence reduced to 7 years

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Rejecting a plea that Patricia Hearst has suffered enough, a federal judge Friday sentenced the newspaper heiress to seven years in prison — a term reduced from the earlier maximum sentence of 35 years — for a 1974 San Francisco bank robbery.

The 371 days Miss Hearst sas served since her arrest counts against her sentence. She will be eligible for parole in 16 months.

Last April, Miss Hearst tentatively was given the maximum sentence required to qualify her for a lengthy psychiatric exam in prison. However, the trial jurist, the late U.S. Dist. Judge Oliver J. Carter, said he would substantially reduce the penalty.

The seven-year final sentence was imposed by U.S. Dist. Judge William H. Orrick Jr. who entered the case after Carter died of a heart attack.

ORRICK TOLD Miss Hearst he had "the deepest compassion" for her but that "violence is unacceptable in our society and will not be tolerated."

The circumstances, he said, "were unique and bizarre," but the jury had rejected Miss Hearst's claim her participation in the robbery was coerced by the Symbionese Liberation Army — which had kidnaped her 10 weeks earlier.

Under the law, the judge said Miss Hearst was guilty of the wounding of three innocent bystanders, although she herself did not fire the gun.

Orrick said Miss Hearst has "cooperated fully" by giving evidence to the FBI about various radicals and if freed, "I do not think it likely she would be a danger to society."

But Orrick said the crime was so serious that a prison term must be imposed to deter potential criminals.

Miss Hearst's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Randolph A. Hearst, were present in the courtroom with three daughters, and took the judgment with restraint. Mrs. Hearst said, "She never had a break all the way — not from the press, not from the court."

Before the sentencing, defense at-

Black majority to rule Rhodesia in 2 years: Smith

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Prime Minister Ian Smith told Rhodesians Friday the black majority would rule the country within two years. The announcement was a major triumph for diplomacy of Sec. of State Henry A. Kissinger and of his efforts to avert a race war in southern Africa.

"Rhodesia agrees to majority rule within two years," a somber Smith said in a taped address to the nation of 275,000 whites and 6.1 million blacks over television and radio.

Smith said, however, his agreement to the Kissinger Plan worked out in close consultation with the British government, was conditional on the halt of the Guerrilla war which has raged on Rhodesia's borders for four years and the lifting of international sanctions.

Reaction in Rhodesia was mixed. Blacks reserved judgment. Whites expressed everything from praise to bitter condemnation.

LORD GRAHAM, Premier-Duke of Scotland and a long-time gentleman farmer in Rhodesia, said, "I think the Prime Minister had no alternative. I think it will work on a certain level."

The Duke predicted a "temporary boom" would result from the infusion of foreign capital planned as part of the six-point plan laid down by Kissinger and accepted by Smith's government.

"But there will not be an increase in the white population. I think they will drift away," the Duke said.

William Harper, leader of the United Conservative party and one of the men who engineered Rhodesia's unilateral declaration of independence from Britain in 1965, accused his former ally Smith of selling out the white community.

THE MIND BOGGLES at the enormous impertinence and audacity of this man Smith as, with a show of sincerity, he explains just how he has discharged the trust that white Rhodesians placed in him in selling us out to black majority rule in less than two years," Harper said.

The moderate Center party, which has no representatives in Parliament, said it "welcomes the decision of the (ruling) Rhodesian Front party to face up to reality and accept the Kissinger package deal."

Even as Smith spoke, Kissinger flew across the Atlantic on the homeward leg of his 11-day shuttle across southern Africa in which he persuaded the previously recalcitrant Smith to accept the principle of black majority rule to avert a bloodbath.

The dramatic turnaround by Smith, who declared independence from Britain and led his nation through 11 years of world ostracism to preserve white supremacy, was reached in talks last weekend between Kissinger and Smith in Pretoria, South Africa. Kissinger then won endorsement of the agreement from black African leaders and turned the negotiations over to Britain.

Smith, who twice before broke off talks with Britain and refused to accept the principle of black rule, made it clear that the agreement had been imposed on Rhodesia by the United States and Britain and that black rule was not his choice.

Smith said that in his talks wih Kissinger "It was made abundantly clear to me that we could expect no help or support of any kind from the free world" as long as Rhodesia maintained white minority rule."

State to seek aid to private airfields

The Illinois Dept. of Transportation will propose before the end of the year a method of giving Pal-Waukee Airport and other private airfields the financial aid to remain open. Melvin Rosenbloom, director of the department's aeronautics division, said the department is considering state subsidies, tax relief and leasing of airport facilities as possible solutions to spiraling operating costs that threaten to shut down Pal-Waukee and other private airports. George Priester, Pal-Waukee owner, decided this summer to sell the 260-acre airfield because he cannot afford to operate it. Priester originally suggested that the state and Cook County jointly purchase the airport while allowing him and his son to continue operating it for another 20 years. Priester said Friday, "We'll hold off on talking with people interested in buying the airport until we hear what the state has to say."

Man convicted in Dec. 30 slaying

A Champaign County Circuit Court jury took two hours Friday to find a 20-year-old Champaign man guilty of the Dec. 30 murder of former Arlington Heights resident Joseph Klein. Eddie Bishop, one of the three men arrested in connection with the shooting death of Klein, told the jury he was sitting in a car outside the Klein residence, 205 E. Garfield, Champaign, when he heard two gunshots and saw two friends run from the house. He testified the three were there to buy marijuana from Klein, who a full-time agronomy student at the University of Illinois. Michael Lee Exum, 17, has pleaded guilty to Klein's murder.

Jewelry stolen from mall store

Mount Prospect police are investigating the theft of eight trays of jewelry from Frederick's International store in the Mount Prospect Plaza shopping center. Thieves apparently smashed through the roof of the store sometime late Wednesday or early Thursday and once inside, removed eight trays filled with jewelry, police said. No dollar value has been placed on the missing merchandise pending inventory, Sgt. Det. Patrick Hallihan said. The store's new ultrasonic burglar alarm, installed six months ago, failed to go off during the theft, even though authorities found it in working order.

Jones declines reelection bid

Palatine Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones Friday announced he would not be a candidate for reelection in April, citing family and business commitments as his reasons for stepping aside. "I have enjoyed greatly my involvement in local government since my appointment as a trustee in June 1967, my election as trustee in 1969 and my election in 1973 to village presidency," Jones said. "Our accomplishments have been substantial. It was a rare occurrence in politics, promises made — promises kept." Jones, 38, said he plans to take an active part in the Republican convention Dec. 4 but declined to make an immediate endorsement for a successor.

Over backing Howlett

Hopefuls continue fight in 3rd

Speaking at the end of the organization's meeting Brennan, without mentioning State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, by name, reminded her audience that Chapman did not endorse Democratic gubernatorial candidate Michael J. Howlett before the March 16 primary.

BRENNAN AND Chapman are the two Democratic candidates for the Illinois House from the Third District. Traditionally, two of the three 3rd District house seats are held by Republicans, meaning Chapman and Brennan are considered rivals for the traditionally Democratic seat.

Following a Chapman speech in which the six-term state representative praised Howlett's "show of leadership" in the recently concluded special legislative session, Brennan said, "Prior to the primary I was the only candidate in the 3rd District who endorsed Michael Howlett. Now that we are all working for him, I think it is important to remember who was with him from the beginning."

DURING THE March 16 primary campaign, Chapman took no public position on the race between Howlett and Gov. Daniel Walker, an independent Democrat. Brennan, who has said she is a "regular" Democrat loyal to Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, backed Howlett, who was slated by Daley.

Also Friday, Elk Grove Democratic Committeeman William Rose praised both Chapman and Brennan, saying, "The 3rd District has an excellent opportunity this time to elect two Democrats."

Rose's praise for both candidates was considered an effort to squelch rumors the organization would work for Brennan but not for Chapman in the November election. Two Democratic clubs in Palatine and Schaumburg townships, loyal to Daley, already have indicated they will not work for Chapman in November.

Osco picketing spreads to all 77 area outlets

The strike by 2,200 clerks of the United Retail Workers against Osco Drug stores Friday spread to all 77 Chicago area Osco outlets.

The striking employes set up picket lines at all stores, although an Osco spokesman said stores were open for business Friday.

"Our stores are all open at this time and we are still in the process of negotiating with the union," the spokesman said. "Other than that we have no comment."

THE STRIKE began Wednesday when union employes walked out in a contract dispute involving salary negotiations.

Only select stores were picketed Wednesday and Thursday before the job action spread. The strike affects a 16-state area.

Union official Ed Jablonski said salary increases are involved in the dispute as well as "some things in the area of fringe benefits."

Starting hourly wages for full-time clerks is $2.65, he said.

TALKS HAVE broken down and further sessions are not planned at this time, Jablonski said. Federal mediator Sam Mazza conducted the last meeting Wednesday, but Jablonski called the session "totally fruitless."

"We are willing to meet and sit down and talk it over, but the company does not seem to have that intent at this time," he said. "Sooner or later we have got to go to the table. Nobody wants to go on strike, it's not good for anybody. It's a last resort effort to achieve at least a decent minimum."

Union Locals 470, 474 and 477 are on strike, but union members employed at Jewel Food stores, Turn-Style Family Centers, Jewel Family Centers and Republic Lumber Co. are not involved.

Black rule pact a beginning: Kissinger

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sec. of State Henry Kissinger learned of Rhodesia's agreement to black rule en route home from his shuttle diplomacy mission Friday and said the breakthrough is "encouraging" but "only the beginning" of a delicate negotiating process.

Kissinger went directly to the White House to brief President Ford on his two-week, 25,000 mile African mediation mission.

Before he arrived, Ford called the Rhodesian white minority government's decision to accept black majority rule in two years as "an act of realism" that would ease "a threat to world peace.

Kissinger, who expected the Rhodesian move, seemed more cautious in his airport arrival statement.

In addition, U.S. officials disclosed the United States has sent a written protest note to the Soviets about the "unhelpful nature" of their propaganda in opposing Kissinger's African shuttle mission.

"The announcement today in Rhodesia is an encouraging development," Kissinger said at the airport. "There is now a greater chance to avert violence, recrimination and outside intervention in Southern Africa.

"But the steps that have been taken are only the beginning of a process. Its outcome and success can only be determined by the peoples and leaders of that country and of the African continent.

"The United States will extend its good offices to help the parties achieve a peaceful solution. We will continue to do this in close collaboration with Britain, which has an historical and legal responsibility and in close consultation with the leaders of Africa."

Before he left London, where he conferred with British officials on the Rhodesia situation, Kissinger expressed complete confidence the Rhodesian white leaders would in fact decide to accept the program for transition to majority rule he worked out with them and leaders of surrounding black African nations.

But Prime Minister Ian Smith did not officially announce that decision to his countrymen until the secretary's plane was airborne for Washington.

Kissinger heard excerpts of the Smith broadcast on a British Broadcasting Corporation cast piped into the plane's public address system. He listened impassively, with no hint of jubilation.

U.S. officials said Smith's acceptance speech fulfilled all the condition laid down during the Smith-Kissinger talks.

They said Smith's speech seemed to be "the unequivocal yes" that Kissinger told a London news conference he had expected.

At a news conference in London with British Foreign Sec. Anthony Crosland before leaving for Washington Kissinger said. "If Rhodesia decides favorably, the next step will be discussion of the legal and governmental forms there will be in Rhodesia."

"Britain has the legal and historical role," he said. "And the United Sttes will be prepared to back her up."

Kissinger and Crosland outlined the planned sequence of events:

- Formation of an interim government in which both whites and blacks will be represented. It will call a cease-fire in the guerrilla war.
- Convening of a constitutional conference, probably somewhere in Africa, to set up the legal framework for transfer of power within two years.
- Formal granting of independence to a new black-governed Rhodesia by the British Parliament, legally ending 11 years of rebellion against Britain by the former self-governing colony's white settler regime.

Both Kissinger and Crosland appeared cheerfuly and confident as they awaited Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith's anticipated announcement.

The two men said U.S., British and South African officials will meet in Washington next week to discuss an "insurance fund" — designed, as Kissinger explained, to "compensate those white Rhodesians who decide to emigrate."

$30 million missile sale to Arabia nixed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee, concerned about U.S. arm sales abroad, Friday voted to stop a proposed $30 million sale of Maverick air-to-ground missiles to Saudi Arabia.

The committee voted, 8 to 6, to recommend the sale of television-guided air-to-ground missiles be disapproved after five and a half hours of deliberation.

The recommendation goes to the Senate. To become effective, both the Senate and House must adopt it by the adjournment of Congress Oct. 2.

In the closing days of the 94th Congress, the administration has sought congressional concurrence to the sale of $6 billion in arms to 14 countries, including Maverick missiles to Saudi Arabia, $3.8 billion worth of F16s to Iran, and weapons for NATO and other countries.

Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., insisted singling out Saudi Arabia was a "grave mistake" with possibly catastrophic results.

But Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and other senators insisted Congress must demonstrate displeasure of the administration's arms sales abroad and require it to make a study of arms sales policy.

To this end, the committee adopted two internal resolutions:

- By a 14-0 vote, to ask the White House for a "comprehensive proposal for the guidance and regulation of arms sales to foreign countries." This resolution was sponsored by McGovern, Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., and Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn.
- By a 13-0 vote, to ask President Ford to instruct Sec. of State Henry Kissinger not to conclude further arms sales agreements in the Persian gulf pending completion of a National Security Council review.

Earlier, the committee rejected a proposal by Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., and Dick Clark, D-Iowa, which would have recommended Congress deny $5.2 billion in arms sales to Saudi Arabia, Iran and Kuwait.

The vote to deny the Mavericks to Saudi Arabia — but allowing other proposed sales to Arabia — caused a problem for Javits, a strong supporter of Israel.

Javits had negotiated with administration officials to lower the Maverick sale to Saudi Arabia from 1,500 missiles to 650 missiles. But Friday he said he was voting "with tears in my heart" in its support because he had to be faithful to his agreement with the executive branch.

Amplifier breakdown stopped debate

The breakdown of an amplifier like those in stereo sets caused the 28 minute gap of silence in Thursday's televised presidential debate, ABC-TV technicians said Friday. The sound on TV sets across the nation went out eight minutes before the scheduled end of the hour and a half debate, just as Jimmy Carter was responding to President Ford's comments on intelligence agency reforms. The ABC technical supervisors said the failure was caused by the malfunctioning of the audio amplification system which was feeding the outgoing program sound to the radio and TV systems carrying the debate.

Planes met head-on: report

A commission investigating the worst air collision in history said Friday a wing of a Yugoslav jet sliced through the cockpit of a British airliner, killing the pilot and copilot. The two planes fell 33,000 feet, carrying 176 persons to their deaths. The two planes cruised head-on into each other in level flight over Yugoslavia during clear weather, the commission said in a preliminary report. Both jets were on their assigned course at the time. The report ruled out an earlier theory the Yugoslav plane had been climbing at the moment of impact. The commission seemed to put the blame for the Sept. 10 collision on air traffic controllers at the Zagreb airport but the report did not specifically mention them. Four controllers have been jailed and their supervisor has been charged in the case.

Rosh Hashanah breaks with warning

Israel marked the beginning of the 5,737th year on the Jewish lunar calendar Friday and its leaders, past and present, took the occasion to warn the nation against U.S. pressure for a peace settlement. As thousands of Jews flocked to the Wailing Wall in the Old City of Jerusalem on Rosh Hashanah, Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin vowed to oppose any American pressure for an imposed settlement of the Middle East conflict. "I believe that Israel can stand up to and reject such an effort," the prime minister said.

Patty's prison term down from 35 to 7 years torneys F. Lee Bailey and Al Johnson argued;

"Patty has been terrorized, brutalized, pummeled, beaten, vilified and tortured. She has been punished, convicted and incarcerated.

"Your honor, she has had enough."

Bailey said Miss Hearst, who suffered a collapsed lung in jail, is the victim both of mental and physical illness. Once released, he said, "she has a rocky road ahead" because of her notoriety and because she "risks harm" from her onetime radical associates.

Miss Hearst, Bailey said, was giving information to the government even while she herself was on trial and did so "with no price attached."

After the proceedings were adjourned, Johnson quoted Miss Hearst as saying, "I expect vindication on appeal."

The verdict was taken Friday to the U.S. Court of Appeals. The petition, which asked for release on bail, said the government had suppressed evidence, altered crucial pictures of the robbery and committed other judicial errors.

Although Miss Hearst is eligible for parole in 16 months, whether it is granted is at the discretion of the Bureau of Prisons.

However, Miss Hearst is scheduled to go on trial next January in state court in Los Angeles on 11 counts of kidnap, assault and auto theft. The charges grew out of an incident May 17, 1974, outside a sporting goods store in which Miss Hearst sprayed a street with machine gun fire.

11 arrested, 7 hurt in racial fight

BOSTON (UPI) — Police said at least 11 persons were arrested and seven others injured Friday in the worst racial flareups in the city during this third year of court ordered school desegregation.

Nine white and black students were arrested at Hyde Park High School and charged in connection with first fighting and chair and rock throwing. Two other persons were arrested in Boston's Mattapan section and charged in connection with stoning police officers escorting school buses.

White and black students ere embroiled in "pushing, shoving and fist fights" on the front steps of the school building, a school spokesman said. Seven persons, including two teachers, were slightly injured. Chair throwing occurred inside the school, the spokesman said.

Uniformed police have been on duty inside the school since incidents last week. Police cleared nearby streets of a crowd of about 200 rock throwing white youths before black students could board buses to go home early.

"The blacks were given the choice to either go home or to to classes," said school spokesman Tom Loftus. "They decided to go home. The faculty is still inside the school, it wasn't ordered closed."

Classes were normal at the city's other 152 schools, many of which also have been desegregated by a federal court order.

A school official said many of the incidents between blacks and whites begin as disagreements, but wind up as racial brawls.

"We always have trouble with that age," Loftus said, "whether its over money or girls. Now we add racial fuel to it."

Rock throwing had been reported earlier in the morning near a playground in Boston's Mattapan section where black students board buses for rides to schools in whiete neighborhoods.

Religious chief raps Carter

People

- Bob Jones III, president of Bob Jones University, a fundamentalist religious school, says Jimmy Carter's election would make the White House "a barnyard where the rooster claims to be born again. "I am sick of the moral irresponsibility of our leaders, and Jimmy Carter by his statements gives me no reason to believe that if he becomes President that there's going to be any improvement," Jones said during chapel service Thursday. Jones, who previously criticized Carter's claim he is a "born-again Christian," said Carter's Playboy interview was an "astonishing, blatant approval of marital infidelity."
- Former Watergate Special Prosecutor Leon A. Jaworski predicted Friday another Watergate scandal would not occur during his lifetime. Jaworski told the Polish American Bicentennial Banquet Friday night in Buffalo, New York, Americans had learned "a considerable lesson" from Watergate. Jaworski refused to discuss his own felings about President Ford's pardon of former Presisdent Richad Nixon.

With debate over, it's nuts-and-bolts campaigning

By United Press International

Debate No. 1 behind them, President Ford and Jimmy Carter headed Friday into a weekend of nuts-and-bolts campaigning — Ford to the Deep South, Carter across country to the West Coast.

An exuberant Ford returned to the White House at mid-day following a post-debate speech to cheering Polish-Americans in Philadelphia, in which he called for preservation of ethnic neighborhoods and customers.

The President also made a pitch to another ethnic group, spending about 45 minutes at an Italian-American market in south Philadelphia.

After catching up on presidential business, the President leaves today on a foray into the Deep South — Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Florida.

Carter also met with members of the Polish-American Congress, telling them at a breakfast meeting that if elected president he would name his top foreign policy adviser, Columbia Prof. Zbigniew Brzecienski, to a top spot in the administration.

The Georgian then headed west with stops in Houston and Dallas before appearing this weekend in two states where he lost in the presidential primaries, California and Oregon.

Ford running mate Bob Dole campaigned Friday in southern California, a stronghold of Republican conservatism that could be a factor in which way the state's 45 electoral votes — the richest single election prize — will go.

The Democratic vice presidential candidate, Walter Mondale, attacked Ford's economic policies in a speech to Connecticut labor leaders in New Haven and met with Jewish leaders there before returning to Washington.

Ford, arriving back at the White House by helicopter, was greeted by an applauding crowd of more than 100 staff members. He smiled broadly and waved in appreciation.

In the Philadelphia appearance, it was obvious the President considered himself the winner in the Thursday evening debate. "I feel great," he said, beaming at the Polish group to a big round of cheers. "How do you feel?"

More cheers when Ford told the gathering that ethnic values are being eroded in many neighborhoods and property values are plunging.

This does not have to happen," he said. "I will do all within my power to see that it does not happen.

"A family needs a neighborhood of local shops. . . and local schools. We must ensure that what you have built is here for your children."

Carter, appearing fresh after only a few hours of sleep, told 20 or so of the Polish-American leaders over breakfast that "all the way down through the generations, there has been a very great tie between the nation of Poland" and the United States.

He praised Brzecienski, whose advice will be drawn upon heavily when Carter debates Ford on foreign policy in San Francisco Oct. 6. He stopped short, however, of saying Brzecienski would be his choice as secretary of state.

Today the President goes to Kenner, La., to board a sternwheeler and make at least two campaign stops along the Mississippi en route to New Orleans. He will campaign by motorcade Sunday through Mississippi and Alabama, staying over night in Mobile and flying to Miami Monday for a speech to the International Assn. of Police Chiefs.

DEMOCRATIC GUBERNATORIAL candidate Michael Howlett, left, and Republican candidate James Thompson made a joint speaking appearance before the Illinois Press Assn. Friday in Springfield. It was the first time during the campaign the duo met for a joint question and answer session.

Meat packing plant strike continues

Production at the Wilson & Co. meat packing plant in Monmouth was disrupted for the second consecutive day Friday by a strike, which the company said was illegal. Robert S. Wheeler, general manager, said production employes were notified by letter they would be discharged if they failed to report to their jobs next week. The workers are members of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workers Union. Reasons for the work stoppage were not clear, but a company source said there was disciplinary action taken against some workers earlier in the week. The plant employs about 400 persons.

Bribe case sentencing Oct. 9

Five men convicted ot taking bribes for helping pass legislation benefiting the ready mix cement truck industry will be sentenced Oct. 29 along with six others who pleaded guilty in the case, a judge announced Friday. U.S. District Court Judge George N. Leighton said he will sentence all the men on the same day because "to do otherwise would demean the integrity of the criminal justice system." Leighton presided at the jury trial last spring of five men convicted in the case. They were found guilty June 25 of accepting $30,000 in bribes from the ready mix cement industry in return for passing legislation to allow heavier trucks on Illinois highways. The measure passed the legislature in 1972 but was vetoed by the governor. Those convicted in the case are State Rep. Robert Craig, D-Danville; State Sen. Kenneth Course, D-Chicago; former Rep. Frank North, R-Rockford; former Sen. Jack Walker, R-Lansing, and former legislative lobbyist Peter V. Pappas.

Vandals may stop Santa

Vandals have destroyed 18 Christmas floats, threatening to disrupt what Peoria officials call the nation's oldest Santa Claus parade. The parade has been held as a prelude to the Christmas shopping season for the past 85 years. The 18 floats, including one depicting the riverboat Julia Belle Swain, has been a parade mainstay in recent years. The Central Illinois Santa Claus Parade Inc. sponsors the annual affair and the Downtown Merchants Assn. foots the bill. But neither the sponsors nor the businessmen knew where the money was going to come from to pay the $15,000 necessary to put the floats' reindeer, angels, Santas and the riverboat back together.

Reporters hear Daley fish story

Senior Democrat Richard J. Daley, the Chicago mayor, has kept silent over Jimmy Carter's remarks on sex to Playboy Magazine. Thursday he turned aside a reporter's question by saying, "What do you think?" and then ducking into an elevator.

Friday reporters again pressed Daley at a news conference. Again the mayor asked reporters for their opinion but kept his to himself. In any case, Daley said, he was going fishing because the Coho were running in Lake Michigan. Earlier this week the mayor hooked a 27-pounder.

Well, said one reporter, what do the fish think about Jimmy Carter's comments?

The mayor smiled and said, "He wouldn't have got caught if he had kept his mouth shut."

'Marquette Park marches are on'

A leader of the Martin Luther King Jr. Movement said Friday the group will continue its open housing marches in the racially turbulent Marquette Park neighborhood next month and that at least two dozen African students will join them. The Rev. Edgar Jackson, a founder of the group and member of the MLK's advisory board, said that between 25 and 30 African students have volunteered to march with the demonstrators. "We are going back to the park," Jackson said. "We will go back with or without a permit."

School bill gets OK of hopefuls

by DAVID FIELDS

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) -- Gubernatorial hopeful Michael J. Howlett and James R. Thompson, appearing together in the nearest thing to a debate so far, Friday endorsed the school aid package passed by the Illinois Legislature Thursday.

The two appeared together for a question-and-answer session with reporters at an Illinois Press Assn. meeting. All but one member of the two parties' state tickets were present for the meeting. Absent was Thompson's running mate, David O'Neal.

Thompson, a Republican, said he was "pleased that the Illinois General Assembly adopted, with both Democratic and Republican support, the compromise school assistance package.

"I think the program is a reasonable one," he said.

Howlett said from the "very beginning" he has supported the plan, which speeds up corporate tax collections to pay for more school aid to schools this fiscal year.

THE COMPROMISE involves giving schools an extra $50 million this fiscal year. The $50 million expenditure would be balanced by accelerating the collection of withholding and sales taxes from businesses by the same amount.

Both Howlett and Thompson said they did not think the package would endanger the state's fiscal condition over the next six years.

"There are no long-range tax implications for the next governor and General Assembly," Thompson said, "because all of us realize it is a one-shot never-to-be repeated proposition."

But Thompson said the state cannot continue to expect to support school aid increases by programs like the tax acceleration package.

Howlett said he sees no long-range problems with the plan.

IT MAY make the amount of money we have in the general fund at the end of this session a little less," Howlett said. But he said state revenue would increase "over $500 million" next year.

The two sat next to each other during the hour-long meeting, trading verbal jabs occasionally, but staying on friendly terms. A spokesman for Howlett later said he "anticipated" the meeting was the closest Howlett would get to a formal debate with Thompson.

On the subject of construction projects, Howlett said he would keep three downstate road programs going through fiscal 1978 if he is elected.

He said more than $1.7 million would be committed for the first phase of the projects. A Howlett spokesman later said the money would go for studies and buying land.

Howlett said the three programs, which also would be funded with federal and local money, would include highways from East St. Louis to Marion, Quincy to Peoria and Bloomington to Decatur.

But Thompson said although the federal government pays 70 per cent of some highway projects, no governor can count on getting the money for new highway projects.

THOMPSON SAID money for primary roads this year has been allocated for reconstruction and repair of the state's primary road system and may not be available for new highway construction in fiscal 1978.

Champ of liberal causes, Senator Douglas, 84, dies

by STEVE GERSTEL
(United Press International)

Former Democratic Sen. Paul Douglas of Illinois, a leading crusader for many liberal causes and an independent-minded maverick, died Friday. He was 84.

Douglas, who had suffered three strokes in recent years and was in failing health, died at his Washington home. A spokesman said, "He just sort of slipped away."

He lived to see many causes he championed — sometimes alone and sometimes with only a few allies — accepted by a majority and enacted into law.

IN HIS FAREWELL to public life after being defeated for reelection in 1966, Douglas brought his listeners to tears.

"Let us purge ourselves of any trace of bitterness or divisiveness," he said. "Let us start with ourselves, for no one of us is perfect or free from fault."

As soon as the Senate learned of his death, the tributes to Douglas — who was held in high respect and affection — began.

In the field of civil rights, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said Douglas "was more responsible for achieving the progress we have achieved than any other human being."

SEN. HUBERT HUMPHREY, D-Minn., said, "He was a fighter and he struggled, he was brave, the epitomy of integrity. He had a decisive mind . . . but above all he was a great, great guy, a tremendous human being."

Douglas was an early and ardent supporter of civil rights bills, reform of union health and welfare funds, truth-in-lending legislation and a number of consumer-oriented programs.

He also was the prime mover behind creation of the Indiana Dunes National Park Service.

And long before other politicians would consider it — in 1964 — Douglas made public his finances.

Although he acknowledged the label of liberal, Douglas, a former professor, was an economy-minded Democrat.

"To be a liberal, one does not have to be a wastrel," he said.

NOT ONLY POLITICALLY, but physically, Douglas stood out in the Senate from the time he was elected in 1948 until he was defeated for reelection in 1966 by Sen. Charles Percy.

He quickly earned a reputation for independence, intellect and integrity.

He was a gentle giant with a shock of white hair who joined the Marine Corps during World War II at the age of 50. He was wounded twice in the Pacific and returned to civilian life with a crippled arm.

Born in 1892, Douglas lived with an uncle in the Maine woods where he began reading about social and economic problems He put himself through Bowdoin College, making both Phi Betta Kappa and the football team.

Douglas moved to Illinois in 1916 — left to serve in World War I — then returned to the University of Chicago as an economics professor. He held many advisory posts and helped draft the first Social Security Act.

HE FIRST RAN for public office in 1939 when he was elected a Chicago alderman. But he failed to gain the Democratic nomination for the Senate in 1942.

In 1948, however, Douglas not only won the nomination, but the election and embarked on an 18-year career in the Senate.

In 1966, Douglas told party leaders he would not seek reelection unless there was a demand for him to serve another term. There was, but he was defeated by Percy. He was not embittered by defeat.

Former Democratic Sen. Paul Douglas maps out the future of his party.

"I do not feel any compelling personal ambition to continue," Douglas said. "Much of what I sought, I achieved.

"I LEAVE PUBLIC life with no regrets," he said. "I would not change a vote or a position."

Douglas was married twice. He married Dorothy Wolff in 1915 and they were divorced in 1930. Douglas married Emily Taft, who was at his bedside when he died, in 1931. He also is survived by five children.

It was fitting perhaps that the Senate received word of the death of former Sen. Paul H. Douglas of Illinois while considering a bill to expand and preserve the Indiana Dunes National Park.

Preservations of the Indian Sand Dunes and passage of a federal truth in lending act were two of the most favored legislative projects advocated by Douglas in his years in the Senate. After a brief tribute to Douglas, the bill passed 74-0.

In 1965, Douglas addressed the United Latin American League at the O'Hare-Sahara Inn.

Dist. 21 to offer school busing to subdivision

School bus service will be offered this year to residents of the Frenchman's Cove subdivision in Arlington Heights. However, parents will be required to pay for the service.

The Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 Board of Education has decided to provide busing for about 10 children from Frenchman's Cove to Irving School, 1250 Radcliffe, Buffalo Grove, at a cost of $96 per child.

The decision was made in response to a request from Frenchman's Cove residents that the board restore free bus service from that area to Irving. The parents said automobile and construction traffic in the area creates a hazard for children walking to school.

DIST. 21 last year offered free busing to students from Frenchman's Cove. The service was discontinued by the board last month because sidewalks connecting the subdivision to the students' main route to school were finished and it was no longer considered dangerous.

The board decided Thursday to route into Frenchman's Cove a school bus which passes the subdivision on its way to Irving. The busing will be provided for this school year, while construction is taking place in the development, said board member Barbara Farr.

Instead of providing free busing, as the parents originally requested, the board agreed to charge parents the standard rate of $96 when optional bus service is desired.

The compromise was reached after a board committee visited Frenchman's Cove Sept. 13 to review traffic conditions in the area.

THE COMMITTEE'S report, presented Thursday night, concluded that construction work and traffic from homes and condominium apartments in the area did not create a hazardous situation for children walking to school in the morning.

John Perry, spokesman for the Frenchman's Cove parents, said Friday, "We were disappointed in that we didn't get free busing, but we believe in the board system and will stand by the board's decision. They did the best they could considering the district's financial situation."

Six children are expected to pay for the bus service, he said. More parents might pay for the service as additional homes are completed in the area.

20-year-old found guilty in murder of village man

A 20-year-old Champaign man has been found guilty of murdering former Arlington Heights resident Joseph Klein Dec. 30.

Eddie Bishop, one of three men charged in the shooting death of Klein, was found guilty by a Champaign County Circuit Court jury which deliberated two hours Friday before returning the verdict.

Klein, an agronomy student at the University of Illinois in Champaign, was shot on the first floor of his house, 205 E. Garfield St., Champaign, while his 3-year-old daughter, Melissa, was sleeping.

His sister, Mary, was in the basement of the house before the shooting took place. Klein asked her to come upstairs and call police shortly after two men entered the house Dec. 30. She said she was attempting to dial the phone when one of the men came into the kitchen and cut off the connection.

MISS KLEIN told police she then heard two shots. When she went to her brother's side, he had been wounded in the chest and leg.

Klein was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Klein of 212 S. Ridge Ave., Arlington Heights.

Bishop testified Thursday that he sat outside Klein's home in a car the day Klein was killed. He said he and two friends had visited Klein to buy marijuana.

While he was sitting in the car, Bishop said he heard two shots and saw the other two defendants running out of the house.

A second defendant, Michael Lee Exum, 17, of Champaign, has pleaded guilty in Klein's murder. A third suspect is awaiting trial.

115,000 population unlikely: Kesler

oped with single-family homes, but 225 persons if apartments were built.

Another reason Arlington Heights is no longer expected to attain a population of 115,000 is because some areas the village had expected to annex are part of newly incorporated Prospect Heights.

Kesler also points out several large tracts of land where high-density developments had been expected but since have been rezoned. One in particular is the 160-acre site between Buffalo Grove and Schoenbeck roads along Palatine Road where a second Harper College campus will be built. The village had anticipated a multi-family development there, Kesler said.

"POPULATION projections can become wrong overnight. There's no sure way to guess what it will be because there are too many factors," Kesler said.

The eventual population will depend greatly on the birth rate and the economy, but the attitude of the village also will be important.

"If we really want 115,000, I think we could find a way, because we can either encourage or discourage growth," Kesler said. "Right now the village's attitude is hard to tell. The village board has never given a clear expression about our residential growth."

Fund gets $1,400 lift from McDonald's

A $1,400 donation from the McDonald's restaurant at Rand and Arlington Heights roads has given the Arlington Heights United Fund a boost toward its 1976 goal of $76,000.

The $1,400 was collected Sept. 14 when the restaurant's owners agreed to donate 50 per cent of all sales that day to the United Fund.

"The United Fund is grateful and it recognizes that it is the cooperation of businesses such as McDonald's that helps make the United Fund a success," Donald F. Morton, general chairman of the campaign, said.

Funds raised locally are used to support 15 local organizations including homemaker services, community nursing, youth services, aid to the handicapped, disaster relief, care of children with special needs, mental health, drug abuse and Scouting.

Workers get last Ford paycheck

DETROIT (UPI) — The Ford Motor Co. gave paychecks to 170,000 striking workers in the 10th day of a nationwide walkout Friday, the last they will receive until the labor dispute is settled.

The checks for the two days worked before the strike began were distributed amid rumors that the No. 2 automaker was preparing its first proposal — or at least the first modification of its contract offer — since Sept. 13.

There were optimistic statements that progress was being made in the past two days from both United Auto Workers and Ford spokesmen.

U.S. Labor Sec. W.J. Usery, in Detroit to address the Michigan State Employes Assn., told reporters he was still "hopeful for a short strike." Usery said he has not spoken with negotiators from either side in the strike and added, "We don't have any finer professional bargainers than the UAW or their Ford counterparts."

THE PAYCHECKS averaged about $150 before taxes. Next week, the auto workers will receive strike benefits of $40 to $50 a week depending on the number of people in their families.

"I'd like to know what's going on over there at the glass house," said one worker at Gate 4 at the Rouge complex as the paychecks were handed out.

His reference was to the nearby Ford world headquarters in suburban Dearborn where bargaining formally resumed Monday. In the five days since then, there have been no formal statements from either company or union negotiators.

"The strikers aren't hurting yet," said Joe Charney, a picket line captain outside Gate 4. "We'll be out here till we get what we want. But a lot of us aren't that happy with the direction of the things so far. I think most of the people I've talked to want to know what's going on."

The widening effects of the strike forced the shutdown Friday of two Ford of Canada plants at Oakville, Ont., the last two Ford facilities in North America building cars. Some 10,000 of 14,000 Canadian workers, who are not on strike, are idled and the remainder could be laid off by next week, a spokesman said.

INDUSTRY SOURCES said Ford would make some major concessions on a key economic issue dealing with the union's demand for more time off the job with no reduction in pay. When the strike started, the UAW asked for 12 extra days off each year.

One union source said Friday that Ford was preparing to make some move to get the stalled talks going.

"We keep picking up vibes from the periphery that the company is planning something," the union spokesman said. "But like we've said since July 20 when the contract talks began, the company knows what our demands are."

Local businessman promotes process

'Biomass' energy making comeback

by LEA TONKIN

Des Plaines businessman Victor Gauger is busy knocking on doors to promote a sure-fire, here-and-now source of energy that generally has been overlooked for years. It's commonly called biomass, and the name probably is one reason it's been overlooked.

What Gauger sells is the know-how, design and construction service for plants that burn materials in the biomass category. "Biomass" can be wood chips, corn cobs, pecan shells or other organic materials.

WOOD FUEL IS Gauger's special interest. He recently organized the National Wood Fuel Assn. to promote the use of wood as energy resources. Gauger is president of American Fyr-Feeder Engineers, a division of American Coal Burner and Wood Stoker Corp., 1265 Rand Road.

Much of the usable wood material in the U.S., such as diseased trees chopped down by municipal crews, is burned or dumped in landfill sites as waste. But wood fuel technology is "here and now," Gauger said. "Our motto is, we beat the sun by 20 years, the wind by 40 years and the tides by 50 years."

Gauger believes he's got the right idea for energy-short industries. Natural gas cutbacks and rising prices for propane and other fuels will force industry to adopt alternative energy technology.

The wood fuel industry, Gauger explained, includes a small number of companies that have designed and built wood-burning boiler plants for loggers and other industries producing wood fuels as residue. Sawmills, paper mills and furniture manufacturers have used residues as an energy source for more than 100 years.

THE NEW ASPECT of the business is clean-burning technology that can be used for heating and other purposes by many industries and municipalities. For example, Gauger said, the huge stockpile of diseased elm trees cut down in many metropolitan areas can provide fuel for industrial boiler plants.

Gauger's company is marketing a wood gasifier system that can be adapted to wood chips, bark, sawdust, corn cobs and any other fibrous material. Particles that would have polluted the air in an open-burning process are contained in a reactor as the volatile gases are burned separately.

The gasifier can substitute for gas or oil in existing boiler operations, Gauger said. Aside from industrial and municipal applications, there are agricultural uses for the gasifier process. Seed corn producers, for example, seek a reliable alternative to propane and natural gas for drying their corn. The "waste" corn cobs can be burned to supply necessary heat, Gauger said.

THE RECENT invention of a "whole tree chipper" device sparked new development of the wood fuel industry. It's a machine that processes an entire tree, "guts, feathers and all" into small wood chips usable as fuel. Approximately 35 per cent or more of a tree, including bark and limbs previously had been discarded or burned as waste.

Gauger said wood fuel and biomass fuels suffer from a lack of popular recognition. Undaunted, he's toted sacks of wood chips to energy symposiums dominated by oil, coal and gas company representatives to spread the word. Gauger plans to participate in the Nov. 15-17 Energy & the Wood Products Industry seminar in Atlanta. The National Wood Fuel Assn. eventually will provide greater publicity for the industry, Gauger said.

There have been a few minor problems along the way to wood fuel development. "One time we started up the wood gas burner inside the plant, and we had a problem with smoke. We had to send everyone home," he said.

THERE WAS the time a person filled pillow cases with pecan shells to be dried for burning, then dried the material at a nearby laundromat. When a pillowcase broke open in the dryer, the person left quickly, Gauger said. American Fyr-Feeder now has its own dryers.

The more serious problem, a lack of recognition, will be overcome as the public is forced to respond to energy shortage problems, said William Parsons, Villa Park environmental technology consultant. Parsons views the technology sold by Gauger and others in the wood-fuel industry as a potential boon to nearby municipalities and industry.

"Communities in this area should get together their annual figures on landfill costs for wastes of this type," Parsons said. He estimates that the cost for dumping diseased and other trees in a landfill site amounts to $30,000 a year for a village of 20,000 people. By using the material as a supplemental heating fuel rather than garbage, a municipality could save that money, Parsons said.

Environmental benefits will follow the economics of wood burning operations, Parsons said. "But there seems to be more interest in responding to a crisis than energy development," he said. "It's a matter of a problem becoming a big enough priority."

Dow ends busy week up 14 points

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market, stunned by a surge in the nation's money supply, finished its busiest week in six months Friday with a small loss in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange despite some midday bargain hunting.

The Dow Jones industrial average, off nearly seven points in the first 30 minutes, lost 1.49 points to 1,009.31. Despite late week losses, the Dow, which reached a 44-month high Tuesday with a 20.28-point jump, finished the week with a gain of 14.21 points.

The NYSE common stock index lost 0.06 to 57.02 and the average price of a common share shed 3 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, which includes some over-the-counter stocks, lost 0.12 to 106.80.

DECLINES TOPPED advances by about a seven-to-six margin among the 1,865 issues crossing the tape. A large number of unchanged issues reflected investor uncertainty.

Volume totaled 17,400,000 shares, down from the 24,210,000 traded Thursday. For the week, the turnover totaled about 126.6 million shares, the heaviest since 136,047,720 were traded the week ended March 12.

Prices closed higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share increased by 1 cent. Volume totaled 1,680,000 shares, compared with 2,200,000 traded Thursday.

Storage idea—let it all hang out

Things, things, things. We all have too many possessions. It's a good idea to get rid of anything that hasn't been out of its hiding place in more than a year. Wow, what a great garage sale we could have.

Many of my friends in the design-field have begun to unload. And to prevent a new bout of collecting, they are using exposed storage instead of concealed storage. Sneaky? No, more "up front."

Even their kitchens have begun to reflect this "what you see is what I've got" point of view. China is neatly stacked on open shelves. Herbs and SPARE THAT STORAGE! The new idea in storage is not to hide anything. Witness this System Cado, chosen by designer Margot Gunther, AID.

Your home

condiments sit on narrow shelves tucked near the food prep area. Baskets hang from ceiling or peg-board wall panels. Pots and pans sometimes are exposed and hanging from racks installed above the cook center. And, thanks to all the nice textures, gleaming surfaces and natural wood utensils, the total effect is visually pleasing.

Living rooms are slower to get this let-it-all-hang-out treatment because most of us have little storage space in the living room. We're lucky if we have a few drawers in end tables or a bookcase or two.

One approach to the open storage idea is illustrated today. You see a wall-hung storage unit by System Cado, one of the pioneer manufacturers in the component age. The planning was done by designer Margot Gunther, AID, who chose a newer group of light oak cabinets. And, with the exception of two chests and a drop-front desk, there are no doors or glass panels used in the system.

There are other storage systems, similar to Cado, and all allow you to plan a very personal family solution. The bonus of the concept is the ability to manipulate the units to fit a future need.

Every once in a while, along with housecleaning, it is fun to re-evaluate the way we use what storage we have.

Miller adds fourth home plan to Nantucket Cove

Miller Builders, Inc. has added a fourth home plan to its single family development at Nantucket Cove, Schaumburg.

The Oakwood, a ranch-style, three-bedroom home with two baths, a finished family room, and a two-car garage, is the only single-level, detached home in the subdivision.

The Oakwood accommodates the family traffic pattern with a central entry foyer that provides immediate access to either the L-shaped living-dining room area, bedroom, or kitchen.

The home's 17 by 14 foot finished family room is adjacent to the dining area, and an eat-in, galley kitchen. Between the kitchen and garage is a convenient 14 by 7 foot "mud room," for extra storage and laundry appliances. Basement is optional.

A market has been detected for ranch styling in Schaumburg where there are very few homes of this type, according to Sheldon Lazar, director of sales and marketing.

Priced at $63,900 without a basement, the Oakwood also broadens the price range of single-family homes at Nantucket Cove. Three other plans priced from $66,400 to $74,700, include Colonial-styled two-story and split-level designs, and a New England Cape Cod bi-level plan.

Thousands sold around world

Bad luck? Buy a plastic mirror

NEW YORK (UPI) — If you believe the old saw that breaking a mirror brings seven years' bad luck, perhaps you should stick to plastic mirrors made of tensioned polyester film and an aluminum frame.

They won't shatter on impact and if the surface is badly scratched, the whole mirror can be resurfaced for only 10 to 15 per cent of its original cost.

These plastic mirrors with foam core backing aren't yet a big business in money, but hundreds of thousands of them are being sold around the world and new building codes, fire protection rules and occupational safety rules that increasigly outlaw large glass mirrors in business premises should give them a big leg up in the years ahead, says Robert Reibel, president of Kamar Products, Inc., Irvington, N.Y., one of the two North American makers of the mirrors.

THE OTHER MAKER is the Mirrex division of U.S. Gypsum Corp., which uses the process only to make mirror faced ceiling tiles.

The process for the plastic mirrors was developed by British Aircraft Corp., which now has licensed 15 firms around the world to use it.

His Mirrorlite mirrors, according to Reibel, are distinguished from other plastic mirrors, such as those made of DuPont's Lucite plastic, because they are of high optical quality and can be used in fine cameras and surgical, dental and other scientific instruments to replace the best grade glass.

The aircraft firm developed the process because it considered glass mirrors unsafe in airliners. But it is finding a tremendous variety of uses. In addition to marketing them under its own brand name, Kamar is making them for private label sale by PPG, 3-M and some other building material houses.

The big uses for the larger Mirrorlite units are in schools, hospitals, hotels, restaurants, department stores, exhibitions and stage settings. The mirrors in the hit Broadway musical "Chorus Line" were made by Kamar. So are virtually all the mirrors in Disney World.

SAUDI ARABIA has ordered polyester-aluminum mirrors for all the many new schools it is building. Reibel expects them to replace glass mirrors in new models of microfilm readers and similar business machines.

Because of their light weight and unbreakability, they are particularly useful for murals and complete mirror walls. The new occupational safety and health regulations frown on the use of regular glass walls or ceilings in offices, factories or public buildings but Reibel said the polyester-aluminum mirrors can meet the requirements.

Mobile homes

With the cost of site-built homes rising rapidly, factory-built units are becoming a popular alternative

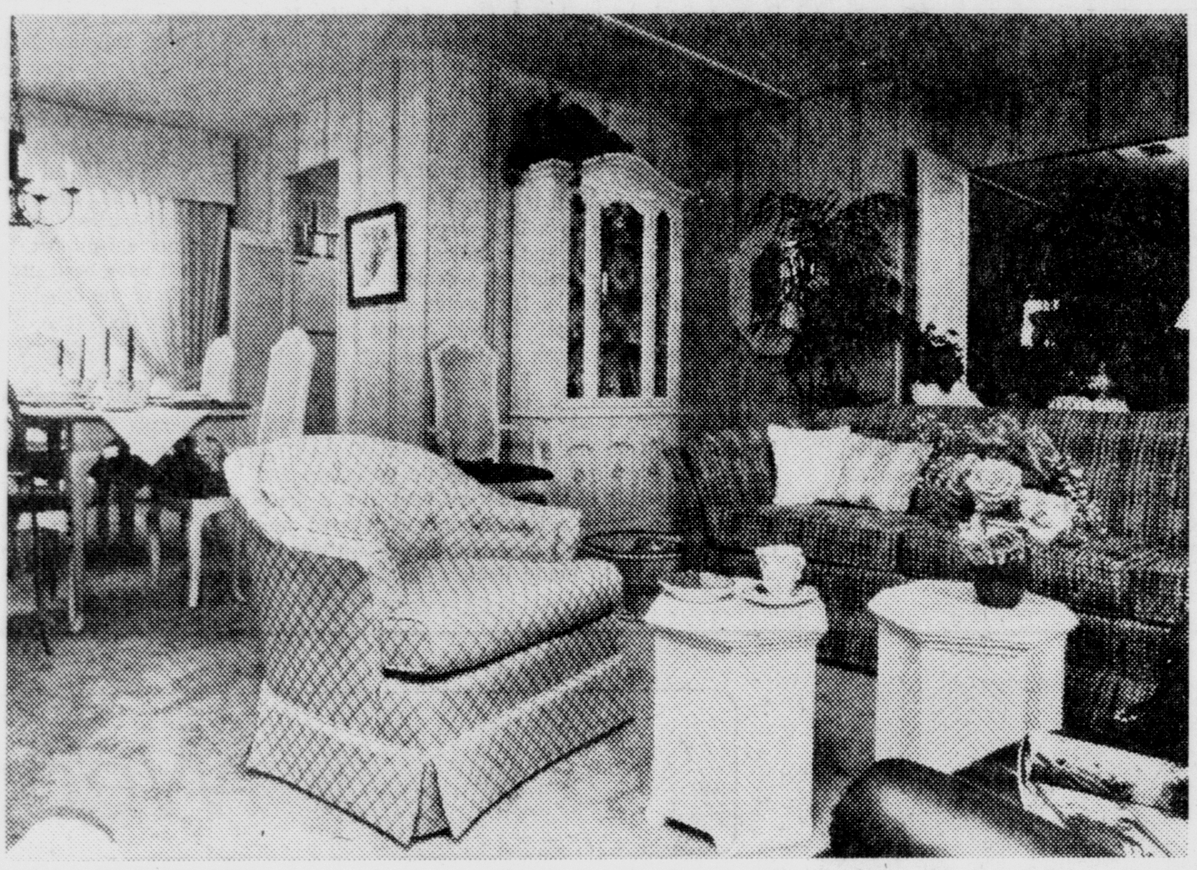
(Bob Anderson is special projects editor of Family Circle magazine. With housing costs at an all-time high, he comments on assembly-line homes as possible alternatives to today's high-priced, site-built homes that the majority of Americans cannot afford.)

by BOB ANDERSON

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The average site-built single family home of 1,400 square feet costs around $46,000. Only about 15 per cent of America's families can afford it. The other 85 per cent have effectively been priced out of the single-family home market.

Since 1972 and the onset of the inflationary spiral that resulted in these escalated home prices, the need has existed for an alternative to the post World War II development house that middle-income families can afford.

Over the past five years Family Circle Magazine has explored the various building options available for developing attractive, affordable housing. Site-built units were eliminated as a solution since construction costs on these homes cannot be kept within the $30,000-$35,000 range the average Family Circle reader can afford while still providing the space and rooms America's families have come to expect.



LIVING ROOM-DINING area of an assembly-line home of 1,325 square feet that may prove an answer for money-short home buyers. In addition, the home developed with manufacturers by Family Circle magazine designers also has three bedrooms, two full baths, a separate laundry room, utility room and seven closets. It is in the $22,000-$25,000 range, exclusive of land.

FACTORY-manufactured housing was attractive because of the construction and labor efficiencies developed by a successful mobile home industry that has perfected assembly-line home production.

Come rain or come shine, it takes an assembly-line home builder 3 to 5 days to complete a two-section, 1,420-square-foot mobile home. Unlike seasonal construction workers, mobile factory craftsmen are employed year-round. Since their salaries are based on a 12 month year, their wages work out to a lower cost per hour than the wages of construction workers — a dollar savings that translates into lowered labor costs for factory-built homes.

As fully decorated houses, mobile homes offer by far the best housing value on the market today. Since what you see is what you buy, unpredictable finishing costs are eliminated. Carpeting and other floor finishes are installed at the factory before walls are nailed in. Wall coverings, including paneling, are similarly factory-added.

A year ago Family Circle, with the cooperation of the Armstrong Cork Co., initited a project with Golden West Homes of Santa Ana, Calif., and The Vindale Corp. of Dayton, Ohio, two of the country's most respected builders of production-line homes, to develop a truly affordable house with all the amenities our readership had come to expect in a livable house. The aim was to combine assembly line techniques with the best advantages of traditional site-built homes.

THE RESULTING "Family Circle Good Value Home" is featured inthe September Family Circle. It costs between $22,000 and $25,000, exclusive of land and depending upon where it's located. Not a prototype of a house for the future, the house can be seen and purchased now.

The 1,325-square-foot ranch house contains three bedrooms and two full baths, a living room with dining area, a family room-den, full-size kitchen with pantry, separate laundry room, a utility room and seven closets.

Included within the price of the house are the furnace, hot water heater, refrigerator, range, mullioned sash windows with screens, sheer curtains and draperies, cushioned flooring and carpet and all the wall finishes and paneling shown in the model.

Not included in the price are furnishings, but all furniture and accessories shown in the models can be purchased, as a package, at reasonable cost. The home meets all local building regulations and is fully insulated according to local requirements, thus accounting for some variations in base price.

THE GOOD VALUE Home arrives in two main sections and can be set up in a mobile home community or, where zoning permits, placed on private land. Included in the quoted base price is shipping, assembly of the house on the land site by a representative of the manufacturer and hookup to water and power supplied.

While factory-manufactured housing can provide an attractive solution to today's housing needs, there are stigmas and local regulations, left from the days when mobile homes were flimsily built narrow trailers, that need to be overcome. Some localities do not allow mobile homes to be permanently mounted on private land. They require that these homes be located only in mobile home parks. These same local regulations also determine whether the house is taxed as personal property or as real estate. Before purchasing a mobile home, check the local zoning requirements of the area in which you choose to live.

Financing is not difficult to obtain for mobile homes although it usually is more costly than that obtained for a traditional site-built home. Whether the house is considered as real estate or personal property will affect the type of financing granted. If the home is considered real estate, you get a mortgage; if personal property, you apply for a chattel-type mortgage similar to that obtained for the purchase of a car.

The mobile home industry hopes that much of the concern regarding shoddy building practices will be eliminated by the federal construction standards that came into effect June 15, 1976. These standards, set up by the Sec. of Housing and Urban Development with the help of the Consumer Product Safety Commission, cover both the construction and safety of mobile homes. They require that mobile home manufacturers submit detailed plans with specifications of each model made to the Design Approval Inspection Agency authorized by the federal government. Manufactured homes also are subject to inspection during the construction process.

However, as expressed by both manufacturers involved in the development of the Good Value Home, manufactured housing will never be fully rid of its negative image and truly become an alternative to development housing until mobile homes more closely resemble the site-built houses they hope to replace. This was the major thrust behind the planning that went into the exterior and interior design of the Family Circle home.

Even the Chinese were fooled by fake jade

Collecting with Grace Carolyn

Although we are inclined to identify porcelains with China and give the name "china" to all such wares, the Chinese themselves would rather be identified with jade, a stone which is believed by them to be possessed of all virtue.

Confucious praised jade and said that it "shines like benevolence; that it is strong and dependable like wisdom; that, like justice, its edges are sharp but do not cut; that, like truth, it does not hide its flaws." The quotation is from that favorite book of mine, "Oriental Antiques and Collectibles," by Arthur and Grace Chu.

Other information gleaned from this delightful book: in ancient times, jade was valued so highly that one prince would offer another several populous cities in trade for one "pi," a piece of circular jade. Kings carried jade at important state functions, and other members of the court wore it as insignia of rank. Jade was used to deliver messages, each color or carving signifying something in particular, and to discover imposters, for it was supposed to have magical qualities.

STILL, IT IS AND always has been very difficult to identify, and even the Chinese could be fooled en masse. For instance, not many years ago when chrysoprase from Australia was sold as jade on the Oriental market, many Chinese accepted it as genuine and gave it the name "Australian jade" until science proved it otherwise.

Jade of both types, nephrite or jadeite, has two outstanding characteristics: hardness and toughness. On the Mohs scale, used to measure these qualities, nephrite has the hardness of 6 to 6.5 and jadeite, 6.5 to 7. This means, for instance, a steel knife will not scratch a piece of jade.

If you are intending to buy a piece of jade, ask permission to scratch it in an inconspicuous place. Press very hard against the tip of the knife. If a white mark shows, the knife has scratched the stone and it is too soft to be jade. If a black mark shows, the stone has scratched the steel and may be jade. But not necessarily. There are several other stones as hard as jade and which look like it. Other more complicated tests are needed to make sure.

The Chus advise that if a piece is very expensive, it should be taken to a laboratory where its hardness, specific gravity and chemical composition can be tested. Don't be fooled by a dealer who says the stone should be cool, or that water runs off its surface easily. For how cold is cool? Almost any polished stone is cool to touch and slick enough for water to run off quickly.

RECENTLY, A LARGE quantity of jade believed to be the nephrite variety was discovered in Taiwan. It contained many graphite inclusions and was inferior jade of the cheapest kind. But a sharp wholesaler ordered a huge supply of carved fantailed fish and paid $5 each. He then sold them for about $50 each to many dealers in the California area. This was just before the opening of a big West Coast antiques show. Imagine the bewilderment of the dealers when each produced identical jade fish, designed to stop the show and take the showgoers' and fellow exhibitors' breath away. I am sure jade fish quickly became a drug on the market!

"Trinket" jade is often carried by many dealers in Orientalia, such as pendants, rings, bracelets and small carved figures. Often the stone is serpentine or other substitutes, for all conceivable kinds of material have been used as substitutes. Glass and porcelain of the celadon variety are attempts to simulate jade. Soapstone, a very soft material, is sometimes called "muttonfat jade" in imitation of the real white jade.

I think all the Chus' stories and warnings are attempts to tell us to be very careful when buying something purported to be jade, for so many pieces cannot stand the scratch test. Of course, the dealer may not stand your performing the scratch test.

'Total Woman' course set for Woodfield

A marriage enrichment seminar, based on the "Total Woman" concept espoused by Marabel Morgan, will be offered at Woodfield's Schaumburg Room in October.

The three-session course, taught by Diane Blacker of Lake Bluff, will be given in two separate classes, one from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and the other from 7 to 9:30 p.m. Dates are Oct, 6, 13 and 20.

More than 400 women attended the seminars that were offered at Woodfield last year, according to Mrs. Blacker, who now has written a book of her own, "Totally New," published by Fleming Revell Co.

The course, based on psychological and Biblical principles, is aimed at helping women fulfill their roles through sharing "how-to" tips and pointers on household chores, disciplining children and adding romance to marriage, she said.

Registration information is available through 392-1191, 279-4982 or 295-1198.

Heating doesn't change milk sugar

Your article on milk and milk sugar has helped me very much, but I want some more information. How about cheeses, puddings, custards and soups made with milk? Will they have the same effect as drinking a glass of milk?

Unfortunately lactose sugar in milk is not broken down by heating. That means if you consume lots of milk in milk gravy, sauces, custards, soups — such as cream of asparagus soup or other cream soups — or in desserts, including ice cream, you may exceed your lactose tolerance level if you have this problem.

Also the lactose is not broken down in the process of making dry non-fat milk powder. The canned milks also contain the usual amount of lactose.

Ordinary milk contains five per cent lactose. Homemade buttermilk made under ideal conditions with the lactobacillus results in buttermilk with only two per cent lactose, a 60 per cent reduction from ordinary milk. But commercial buttermik results in the early destruction of the lactobacillus and it contains four per cent lactose, not much better than ordinary milk. The same problem applies to cheese made commercially. Homemade yogurt does reduce the lactose content a great deal, but commercial yogurt is often thickened with non-fat dry milk powder and the end result is a product very high in lactose. It is most unsatisfactory for anyone with lactose intolerance.

The best way for anyone with digestive complaints to test the role of milk lactose as a causative agent is to avoid all milk and all milk products, including cheese, yogurt, ice cream, milk in cooking and buttermilk. If the symptoms disappear in a few days and you remain free of symptoms, it is likely the amount of milk products you are using is a factor in causing your symptoms.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-2, Milk Products: Good and Bad, to give you more information on this subject. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Send your request to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, Tex. 78292.

A friend of mine and I were discussing tuberculosis. She insisted that it is hereditary and I claim it is contagious. If it isn't hereditary, would there be a weak strain in the family? Are tuberculosis and consumption one and the same?

Tuberculosis is not hereditary. It is caused by a germ. Because of the staining reaction used in the laboratory it is often called an "acid fast bacillus." Doctors sometimes use "acid fast" as a code term when discussing tuberculosis in the presence of a patient when they do not want to alarm the patient.

Tuberculosis may appear to be hereditary because it may occur in many members of the same family, but that is because it is contagious. Overcrowded housing conditions increase the chances of spread. That has something to do with its prevalence in parts of Mexico and heavily populated areas of the world where housing is at a premium.

Consumption is a popular term that may mean different things to different people. I have learned not to conclude what such unscientific terms mean but rather ask the patient what the term means to him.

Porcelain is china but nonporous kind

Dear Dorothy: A recent magazine ad touted bicentennial plates of porcelain which were quite expensive — much more so than Haviland, Limoges and other brands of fine china. I understand that commemoratives are more expensive than contemporary items of equal quality.

What I'd like to know is whether porcelain is better than china and what the difference is in the process. Unless porcelain is naturally better, I can't understand why these bicentennial plates at $50 each would not be made of china. — Col. Daniel B. Corman

You open a fascinating subject. Like many others, you put china and porcelain into different categories. China is the generic term for all such fine pottery. Its origins go back to 7th century China and the quality was traced to the purity of the clay. The English improved their clay by adding bone ash (thus "bone china"). France has good clay and so do we in Georgia, North Carolina and Pennsylvania. Porcelain simply describes nonporous china having translucence. You sized up the commemorative aspect properly. High quality big name chinas are produced year after year. A one-shot deal would be priced upwards because of the limited production. I suspect one buys these offerings more for the novelty, or long range prospect of relative scarcity, than for quality, even though the ones advertised probably are quite good.

Dear Dorothy: Here's a tip for others who like to keep and use leftovers. I not only put mine in foil dishes, but warp them in foil. Then whatever I pick can be heated without dirtying extra dishes. — Mrs. J. C. Hills.

Dear Dorothy: Since polyester fabrics tend to pick up underarm odors, I pre-soak my husband's shirts with a popular brand of borax. It's cheap and works great. — N.C.

Dear Dorothy: In baking a cake, I rub the pan generously with margarine, then flour it before pouring in the cake mixture. After it comes out of the oven, I wait 15 minutes to remove the cake from the pan, yet a lot of crust still sticks to the sides of the pan. What will prevent this sticking? — Mrs. Louis J. Kesten Jr.

You're right in not taking the cake out too soon. Leaving it to cool for 10 to 15 minutes is a good idea. but right after taking the pan from the oven, hit the sides of the pan gently. This loosens the cake enough for it to move. See if this doesn't cure the sticking.

The way we see it

Coalition's idea good for voters

After being rebuffed by the courts, the Coalition for Political Honesty has taken a new tack in its campaign to strengthen state political ethics laws.

Instead of folding tents and rushing off quietly into the night, the coalition has decided to ask each candidate for the Illinois General Assembly whether or not they support the three constitutional amendments which were proposed by the group.

The amendments, which would outlaw double dipping, ban advance pay for lawmakers and strengthen the conflict of interest laws, have merit. We were dismayed by the court decision which eliminated the opportunity for Illinois voters to cast an opinion on the proposals.

The coalition has promised to report the results of the questionnaire responses received from the legislative candidates. Coalition leaders do not plan to make any endorsements of candidates, but they will communicate through the news media what the response has been.

The questionnaire idea is a good one. The results will give voters a feeling of the legislative candidates' position on ethical questions.

Some lawmakers will argue that the questionnaire is not fair or that the amendment proposals are vague and poorly prepared.

But it is apparent that there is a need to add some stronger ethics laws to the books in Illinois. There is also a need for elected officials to make an extra effort to restore the public's faith in government and its leaders.

The efforts of the coalition has been directed toward this aim. Legislative candidates should respond to the coalition's questionnaire, and the voting public should keep those responses in mind when they go to the polls.

Neither seen nor heard

It's hard to picture a business where someone would be hired for a $65,000 a year job without meeting the people who were responsible for hiring him.

However, that's the way things happen in the Cook County government.

The county board Monday voted to approve a recommendation from county Board Pres. George W. Dunne appointing Dr. Robert J. Stein as county medical examiner. When Commr. Carl Hansen of Mount Prospect asked that Stein be introduced to the board, Dunne said such an introduction would be "inappropriate" because Stein might be subjected to an "inquisition."

In telling the county board to approve his recommendation without question, Dunne said the appointment was solely his responsibility and that he personally will take responsibility for Stein's performance in office.

That argument might be appropriate if Dunne made the appointment solely on his own authority. However, the ordinance setting up the medical examiner's post calls for the board president to make the appointment with the "advice and consent" of the county board.

Dr. Stein may be eminently qualified for his job. It's too bad the county board did not have the chance to advise on the appointment before it gave its consent.

The spirit is alive in the land.

Residents blamed for loss of water at Northwest Community Hospital

Recently our daughter was hospitalized at Northwest Community Hospital. While visiting her Saturday, Sept. 4, we discovered, much to our horror and the hospital's, that the Village of Arlington Heights turned the water supply off without notifying the hospital. If that wasn't irritating enough, on our way home we discovered four homes in a row sprinkling their lawns no more than three quarters of a mile away.

What reasoning is behind the village to turn off a hospital's water until 8:30 that evening and leave residents' water on to sprinkle lawns, sidewalks or whatever a sprinkler may hit? It would seem only proper to make sure a facility that takes care of various problems needing water to have it and let the residents suffer a little.

I wonder how many people know how the village seems to turn off water to a needy place and keep it on for non-practical purposes. Also, the least the village could have done was to notify the hospital of the possible turn-off so they could have been prepared. We wonder how many operations went undone because of a lack of water.

(Editor's Note. The Village of Arlington Heights confirmed a serious drop in water pressure at the hospital Sept. 4. Public Works Director Gene Willroth said the low pressure was caused by heavy lawn sprinkling in the area. Police cars were sent into the neighborhood to ask residents not to sprinkle and pressure was restored in about 30 minutes, he said. Willroth said the village did not shut off water to the hospital.)

Worthy of note

Our daughter Vicki Jo died July 18 as the result of a fire in our Palatine home. So many of you have sent cards or letters, or have donated to the memorial fund for her that it may not be possible for us to thank all of you personally. We are grateful, also, to Father Tom Rzepiela of St. Thomas, to the Palatine paramedics who helped Vicki Jo, to the police, and most of all, to our neighbors and friends for their kindness. There is so much we would like to say, and it is hard to say it, that perhaps the best way is just to say, thank you. Truly, Palatine is a total community of friends, a community that cares.

Unions have power to control

Labor labors for its government

by TOM TIEDE

(With the Dole Campaign) — Vice-presidential candidate Robert Dole was telling an audience the other day that the only union ever to support him for public office was the Women's Christian Temperance Union — "and they're now having second thoughts."

It was nicely done. Droll Dole. The Republican loves to joke about his party's political problems because they hurt too much to cry.

In the case of union support, or lack of it, the situation is more than just a problem for the Grand Old Party. It is open warfare. Big labor has battled Republicanism since before George Meany was a seed — which is to say from the first light of time — but this year its offensive is unprecedented in scope and ferocity. As Barry Goldwater puts it, quite accurately, unions are "aiming for a Republican knockout in 1976, a virtual end to the two party system."

Certainly the moment is ripe for a House of Labor coup. Also, the hour is late. Union leaders worry that if the GOP can overcome its present condition, which has been widely diagnosed as deathly, labor's dreams may be shattered for generations. If Gerald Ford is allowed reentry in the White House it could mean 16 more years of Republican rule, and quite frankly labor wonders if a 98-year-old Meany would still have the strength to save the working man from ruination.

Hence if a Labor government is to occur soon, it must be now. Accordingly, union leaders have mobilized to that end. More than 100,000 union members are being formed into a stout army that may well be the strongest political force in the nation's history. The idea, say Republicans, is to elect Jimmy Carter, to drive at least 50 more GOP out of Congress, and, as Dole puts it with excessive histrionics, to "let George Meany take over the country."

Dole is of course using the AFL-CIO president illustratively. He knows Meany would not even consider becoming emperor, because of the cut in his influence. And yet at least some of the Republican distress is accurate; big labor may spend as much as $100 million on this year's election effort (Goldwater says it will be between $40 and $60 million), and that debt may have to be repaid, i.e., a government of, by and for what Jimmy and George call the workers, y'all.

Already the Carter campaign is heavily indebted to union America. Dole staffers remind that 20 per cent of the Democratic convention delegates were union members, and that Carter now employs a large number of union executives in his election campaign (Mary Zon, for one; she's an official with the AFL-CIO's political arm, now coordinating Carter's labor effort). Before November, Republicans add, Carter will have support from the leadership of every big union in the nation.

One of the big unions supporting Carter is of particular concern to the GOP. That is the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes. Republicans believe AFSCME wants to gain absolute control over government, including the ability to close government down by strike. Already it is near such power. Dole aides say that an elected Carter would be almost obligated to grant it completely.

Carter kowtowing to government workers? That would seem like Jerry Ford knuckling under to the Cambodian navy. Yet despite his image as an anti-bureaucrat, the Democratic nominee is quite in favor of bigger government, more government workers and increased government spending. As governor of Georgia he increased the civil service roster by 25 per cent and the state's budget by more than half. AFSCME considers J. Carter a good friend of the public servant.

It is perhaps possible that Carter could doublecross union hopes. He may take help and money but not advice. Yet Republicans are of little faith. Goldwater tells of an AFL-CIO computer that has a name and address index of 14 million union members who can be quickly contacted on the Democrats behalf; it is a political weapon that may be too awesome to contemplate angering.

Besides, there is George Meany. With his 50,000 locals. If Jimmy gets out of line, well — are the peanut workers organized?

Corrupt officials due publicity?

by DON OAKLEY

In his recent go-around with President Ford over the question of whether FBI director Clarence Kelley should have been fired because he accepted gifts from subordinates and let bureau agents perform certain interior decorating services in his apartment, Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter made a good point.

People have a right to ask, he said, "If the big shots in Washington get by with it, why can't I? . . . What sort of inducement is that to young people not to break the law?"

Now it may be impossible to prove that misconduct by public officials encourages the same on the part of the ordinary citizen, and in Kelley's case there were, at least in the President's estimation, a number of extenuating circumstances.

But certainly, the belief that elected and appointed officials are "getting by with it" on a grand scale is one cause of Americans' widespread disgust with government and politics.

The fact is, however, that since 1970 something like 1,000 federal, state and local government officials have been convicted on federal corruption charges involving extortion, bribery, kickbacks and other abuses.

This was revealed last month by Assistant Attorney General Richard L. Thornburgh. In light of the Kelley affair, and Mr. Carter's attempt to make a little political hay out of it, what Thornburgh said before bears repeating.

The cases he cited were not minor ones by any means.

At the federal level, for example, and excluding the Watergate offenders, convictions were obtained during this period against a sitting vice president, a half-dozen members of Congress, a number of congressional aides and a judge of the court of appeals. Also on the federal list were high-ranking officials of such agencies as the Department of Housing and Urgan Development, and the Small Business Administration.

At the state level, high-ranking officials included a governor, state judges, cabinet members and legislators.

And at the local level, scores of mayors, councilmen, county executives, law enforcement officials and political leaders were convicted of crimes involving the betrayal of their public trust.

All of which presents something of a dilemma: Should this startling number of convictions be publicized, or should it not?

On the one hand, it makes it appear as if corruption truly is rampant in government — although Thornburgh took pains to emphasize that this was not necessarily so, but rather was the result of more energetic prosecution by the Justice Department.

On the other hand, to ignore it or downplay it would be to permit the public to go on believing that everybody in government is "getting by with it."

We just hope that the Justice Department continues its vigorous activities, regardless of which presidential candidate wins the election.

How should America define its allies?

by NEA/London Economist News Service

The second Korean war did not take place last month, because none of the five countries involved in that remote part of the world wanted it to. North and South Korea are too evenvly matched for either of them to be able to count on a quick knock-out punch; this is not a moment when either China or Russia wants North Korea to start another prolonged slugging-match with the Americans like the 1950-53 war; and the memories of Vietnam still check American presidents' hands.

So the North Koreans shuffled into a quarter-apology, and the Americans half-accepted it, and the macabre episode of the two Americans axe-murdered because they wanted to trim a poplar tree became another chapter in the bloody annals of the Korean confrontation.

But the Panmunjom killings sent a shudder round the world; a shudder which meant "Oh, no, not Korea again," and did not invoke any of those heroic attitudes redolent of 1914-18 which were still a respected national mood last time.

They were also a lesson in how difficult it will be for either Jimmy Carter or Gerald Ford to appraoch the far-flung problem of America's international commitments in a spirit of pure real-politik, whichever of them is elected in November.

It might seem that it would not matter very much to most Americans whether the South Koreans lived under the right-wing authoritarianism of their President Park or the personality-cult communism of North Korea's Marshal Kim II Sung.

For those Americans who are tempted to think purely in terms of America's own national interests that might look like a decisive argument for getting out of Korea.

But the truth of the matter is that the American army does not keep 41,000 men in South Korea mainly for the sake of the South Koreans. They are there mainly because of Japan — because a still almost militarily naked Japan (its army little more than a third the size of North Korea's) would have to see Communist troops only 100 miles away across the Tsushima straits; and because most of the rest of us would hate to see a Japanese army suddenly expanded six times over, so as to be a safe twice the size of North Korea's.

If the Americans decided to limit their protective umbrella to those parts of the world which were directly and wholly indispensable to the United States, they would find themselves invlved in relatively few places outside the American continent itself.

The oil-rich Persian Gulf, would be the core of an American foreign policy based on self-interest only. The next — and less important — ring around that core would consist of the industrial countries of western Europe and Japan. Europeans and Japanese like to tell themselves that their democracies are bound to the United States by unbreakable ties of mutual self-interest; but they exaggerate.

The third, and outermost, ring of America's present friends and allies are the countries which provide it with neither raw materials nor markets.

Israel is the clearest example: on a strict accounting of their material interests in the Middle East, many Americans might now wish that Israel had never existed. What Israel has to depend on is the intangibles: the support of the American Jewish community; the belief of most non-Jewish Americans that Israel is the best solution to the post-Hitler plight of the Jews, provided it does not rule out a solution to the post-Israel plight of the Palestinian Arabs; not lesast, the fact that Israel is that increasingly rare animal, a democracy.

This is why realpolitik alone is not a satisfactory basis for American foreign policy. If realpolitik means a policy based on a straight profit-and-loss calculation of American economic interests, the United States would be concentrating its most loving attention on a handful of oil kingdoms. The democracies of Western Europe and Japans would rank second. The Israels and Portugals and the New Zealands would rank nowhere at all.

Fortunately, this is not a policy that any American President is likely to be able to persuade American public opinion to support. The Americans put a high value on the intangibles: they would prefer to think they had a closer connection with Portugal's Mario Soares (though they tend to be suspicious of people who call themselves socialists) or with Israel's Yitzhak Rabin (though they wish he would stop dithering about his Arab policy) than with the world's oil-owning Colonel Qaddafis.

And they are right. The United States of the 1980s would be a very different place from the United States of 1917 and 1941 if its foreign policy were based chiefly on the calculation of economic self-interest.

Trade, multinational companies and the flag have followed each other into the world's few pluralist democracies: so that is one place America's interest belongs. The only other is with those non-democratic regimes that can prove they are reliable allies who command the loyalty of most of their peoples, even though non-democratically expressed.

That has its dangers: American support for a democratic ally (Japan, for instance) may lead on to American support for that ally's non-democratic friend (South Korea). There has to be constant checking to make sure that the network of commitments does not extend to entanglements of less than marginal utility and more than dubious political morality.

If the North Koreans had decided to make the affair of the Panmunjom poplar tree into a cause of invading South Korea, the Americans might, as a last resort, have had to fight.

That is not necessarily true of every front-line position they find themselves in. But President Ford — or President Carter — will not be able to pull out of many of these front-line foxholes without ending up with an isolated America.

Archie's lustful cheating on Edith brings down roof

by DOROTHY MEYER

Boy! I had to open my big mouth — in print, yet — and brag about what a great week it was a week ago. I should have known that the roof would fall in immediately thereafter, and it did.

It wasn't anything financially disastrous like the clutch of my car going out to the tune of a $200 repair bill. That happened to one of the poor kids at work, but when he's as old as I am he'll realize that repair bills have nothing to do with the real meaning of life.

And it wasn't something intimately awful, like my Camille cough means that I can't have any more children. This cough of mine is merely the tag-end of a summer cold, and anyhow I was too old to have any more babies five years ago. Maybe six, even. Besides, that's a comfort, not a catastrophe.

IT ALSO didn't have anything to do with my personal relationships, like all my relatives and friends have turned their backs on me because I have psoriasis or clothes with static cling.

No, it went deeper than that.

Deeper even than reading about Jimmy Carter being quoted in Playboy magazine about his lustful thoughts, or that a United States Steel guy paid for President Ford's caddy and green fees in 1964 and maybe again in 1971.

My distress was caused by this week's television premieres.

DURING A commercial break, there was Richard Basehart, the Admiral Nelson of "Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea," touting up kitchen counters. Admiral Nelson! Nelson, whose impregnable submarine and unshakeable courage withstood the dangers of the deep and the terrors of the unknown — that wonderful man, pimping for plastic counter tops!

But wait.

Actually, Nelson-Basehart was only the after shock. I was already benumbed by the impast of the show itself.

By now you must know the show I mean.

Archie Bunker cheats on Edith!

Better for the country that a Presidential candidate admits to mental adultery or lets the other guy pay his greens fee. But Bunker — that stalwart of moral conduct, that bastion of decency, that uninhibited flusher of terlets because flushing a terlet is a basically honest act — Bunker, sneaking and lying and causing Edith to cry! It's just too much.

Shaken as I am. I can hardly wait until next week. Will Archie buy his waitress a plastic countertop? Will Edith cause Jimmy Carter to have more lustful thoughts? Will Admiral Nelson give the President a submarine ride?

I don't know. I do know that I'll never again brag about what a wonderful week I had.

Defense contract ties cited

Ford treasurer's 'conflicts' ripped

Watch on Washington

by Clark Mollenhoff

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Ford administration has mixed presidential politics and defense contract policy decisions in an unwise manner that makes several members of President Ford's team subject to Democratic criticism for "conflicts of interest."

Perhaps the clearest point of vulnerability was the naming of Robert Moot, treasurer of President Ford's campaign committee, as a member of a special Defense Dept. advisory committee to make recommendations for new policies on defense profits.

To the casual observer as well as to Rep. Charles H. Wilson, D-Calif., a member of the House Armed Services Committee, the appointment seemed an effort at "exploitation of Pentagon processes for political gain."

WILSON USED the incident to blast Ford, Moot and the Pentagon officials responsible for Moot's appointment.

The California Democrat accused the Ford administration of having a "buddy system" between the political campaign and the Pentagon that resulted in contract policies favorable to big defense contractors.

Wilson has charged that new policies recommended by the "Profit 76" committee could "increase the profits of shipbuilders and missile manufacturers by over $200 million yearly."

The outspoken Democrat also charged Deputy Defense Secy. William P. Clements Jr., the man who has accepted responsibility for selecting Moot with a "definite conflict of interest."

WILSON'S CHARGE against Clements involves his ownership of stock in Sedco, an international oil drilling firm, and Sedco Maritime, its affiliate, at the same time he is taking part in oil decisions for the Defense Dept.

In a recent speech, Wilson said Clements had been permitted to retain more than $120 million in stock in Wedco by the then Defense Secy. James Schlesinger, who said Clements would remove himself from any oil decisions "to avoid even the appearance of a possible conflict."

However, Wilson said Clements is involved, at least indirectly in oil decisions and other decisions that constitute a "conflict of interest."

Clements rejects the claim of "conflicts" in his role on oil and arms matters, but through a Defense spokesman acknowledges he "might have been in error" in choosing Moot for the advisory committee.

MOOT, COMMENTING on his own role, says that "in fact there is no conflict, although I can see how the question might be raised."

In the period since the conventions, committees for both Ford and Carter received $22 million and are barred from accepting funds from defense industry officials or any other source, Moot said.

He said public financing of presidential campaigns changes the whole concept of campaign committee duties to more routine record keeping, and actually bars the enthusiastic fund-raising booster associated with campaign committee officials in the past.

Moot said when Clements selected him for the position on the special advisory committee "I never gave the possibility of conflicts a second thought." He went on the advisory committee in June, and he said all of the work of the committee was completed "in a couple of days in July."

MOOT SAID HE did not believe President Ford was even aware that Clements had named him to the special committee. He said he assumed that Clements made the decision because of Moot's extensive service in the Defense Dept.

He was the first comptroller of the Defense Supply Agency and later was administrator fot the Small Business Administration, and has won numerous civilian service awards.

The veteran government accounting expert disagreed sharply with Wilson's judgment that the advisory committee recommendations amount to "a giveaway" to the shipbuilders and missile makers. He sid "our recommendations" are an effort to solve defense contract controversies, adding that the defense industry has "fought against the principles of 'costing' in our report."

However, Air Force cost analyst A. Ernest Fitzgerald said the recommendations by Moot's committee "would put an incentive on building up the costs in the first production contracts" because this could become the base for all later purchases.

FITZGERALD, who has had differences with Moot in the past, said the Air Force has raised opposition to using a base of actual costs because "it provides a loophole under which the costs of bribes and mismanagement cranked into the first year become a burden on the taxpayer for the duration of the contract."

It was Moot who warned Fitzgerald against testifying fully and completely to a congressional committee several years ago on the nearly $2 billion in cost overruns on Lockheed's C5A jet transport in 1968.

Moot acknowledged he had warned Fitzgerald, but said he "couldn't remember" whether, as Fitzgerald's superior in the Air Force, he said "there would be blood on the floor" if Fitzgerald told the committee the truth. Fitzgerald went ahead and testified.

Moot was one of Fitzgerald's Air Force superiors who subsequently took part in efforts to fire him and to picture the firing as a reduction in force. It took Fitzgerald five years to fight that firing and be reinstated.

Ask Andy

Leather goods durable, beautiful

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Kurt Bahnmaier, 7, of Mount Prospect for his question:

WHERE DOES LEATHER COME FROM?

Leather is the treated or tanned hide or skin of an animal. Although about 80 per cent of the world's leather is used for shoes, it also is made into belts, jackets, handbags, luggage, sporting equipment, furniture and many other articles. What makes it so valuable for shoes is its porous quality. Under a microscope you can see that, instead of a dense mass, leather is a fine network of millions of tiny fibers linked together. Air and water vapor can pass through this network, which is why all-leather shoes insulate feet so well and why foot perspiration can evaporate thorugh the invisible pores.

Most leather goods are made from the hides of cattle, sheep and goats. Horses, hogs, kangaroos, alligators, snakes, lizards and deer also contribute to the wide variety of leathers. The term "hide" refers to the skins of large animals, as in cowhide, while "skin" refers to smaller animals, as in calfskin or pigskin.

All leather is treated to produce the desired softness and flexibility. By varying tanning agents, leathermakers can produce the supple leather for the tops of shoes as well as the firm yet flexible leather for shoe soles.

Leather goods are not only strong and durable, they also are beautiful. What's more, today's leather has the additional benefit of modern research. Its quality, color, resistance to wear and versatility have been improved greatly. Modern tanning methods provide many more types and uses for leather. Also important are the machines which produce leather faster and more cheaply than was possible previously.

Cornering a Mustang

MEADOWS' RICK SUTTON (No. 23) tries for a gain in Friday's game against Elk Grove. Grove won 27-6 and Sutton, who gained 183 yards last year against Hoffman, was held by the Grenadiers to just 21 yards rushing.

Big plays lift Grove to 27-6 win

by BOB GALLAS

Elk Grove High School football coach Don Schnake almost sounded like his team had lost, as he analyzed the Grenadiers' 27-6 win over Rolling Meadows Friday night.

Always cautious, Schnake scoffed at those who are comparing this year's Elp Grove squad to that of 1972, when the Grens were the mythical state champion. But they looked like champions Friday night.

The Grens came up with the big plays when it counted against the Mustangs from Rolling Meadows, rallying from a 6-0 deficit early in the second period to go ahead 13-6 by halftime, on 41-and 77-yard touchdowns. But it was the first Elk Grove score that turned things around for the Grenadiers.

Meadows had picked off an errant Dave Champa pass late in the first period and, two plays later, Dennis Drolet hit Ken Cooper on a 67-yard bomb that put the Mustangs ahead 6-0 early in the second quarter. But the run for the extra point failed, a sign of things to come for Meadows.

Starting on their own 40-yard line, Elk Grove was on the scoreboard three minutes later as Champa hit Mark Smith for a 41-yard touchdown pass.

The Grens were on the scoreboard again following a Drolet pass that was intercepted by Fred Aguayo of Elk Grove, the first of three interceptions thrown by Mustang quarterbacks. Again Grove scored on a big play, as Champa handed off to Shawn Murphy who poured on the speed to squirt through the Mustang defense for a 77-yard touchdown run that made it 13-6.

"Take back that pass and Murphy's run and it would have been a long night for us," said Schnake, who pointed out that was an early turning point for Elk Grove. "But we showed real promise tonight."

The promise came in the Grens' offensive line, which was opening up huge holes for Elk Grove running backs, and the defensive squad that intercepted three passes, recovered a fumble and held Mustang running back Rick Sutton, who gained 183 yards against Hoffman Estates last week, to just 21 yards in nine carries.

Elk Grove pulled away in the third quarter, during which they controlled the ball on offense for all but four Mustang plays, one of which was an interception and another a fumble Elk Grove recovered.

A Drolet pass intercepted by Jim Meyer at the Mustang 25 yard line set up the third Elk Grove score, a two-yard plunge by Tim Roberts that made it 20-6 after Champa's extra point kick.

Two plays later, Grove had the ball back again when reserve signal-caller Bill Collis fumbled the snap on his play after coming in for Drolet, who was injured slightly. Tom Munro recovered the fumble at the Elk Grove 46 and the Grens marched down field to score, as Champa sneaked in from the two with only 20 seconds gone in the fourth quarter. Champa added the kick to make it 27-6.

Elk Grove churned out their yardage almost exclusively on the ground, going to the air only four times. Champa completed two passes, the 41-yard touchdown and a nine-yard toss in a fourth down situation in the third quarter that kept a scoring drive going.

On the ground, Elk Grove ground out 318 yards, mostly behind Shawn Murphy, who gained 128 yards in 18 carries and Roberts, who in three periods gained 77 yards in 17 carries.

Conant takes thriller over Schaumburg

by ART MUGALIAN

Some people were expecting miracles from miracle-man John Ayres when he took over the Conant football fortunes last season.

The miracle finally happened.

Ayres' rebuilding job, a full year in the planning and execution, reached fruition Friday night on the Cougars home field when Conant stunned defending MSL South champion Schaumburg 7-0. The victory was the second in a row for Coach Ayres' Cougars after 15 straight losses.

Rallied by a first-quarter injury to teammate Tony Stompanato and saved by an incredible last-second goal-line tackle by Dave Brumm, the Cougars beat Schaumburg for the first time since 1971, dropping the Saxons to 1-2 on the season and 0-2 in the South.

The victory left Ayres hoarse and virtually speechless at the same time, while his players chanted, almost in total amazement, "We beat Schaumburg! We beat Schaumburg!"

The Cougars won the game in the first quarter on a 4th-down, 16-yard TD pass from Scott Schafer to Mike Walston after a 67-yard march the first time Conant had the ball.

"A great game, a beautiful game," gasped Ayres, with tears already forming around his eyes. "This has to be about the biggest win in this school's history."

His Cougars showed just enough defense to win, but, still, it was an unbelievable defense. Until the final minutes of play, Schaumburg running back Steve Knudson romped almost at will through Conant defenders.

The speedy, 165-pounder picked up 185 yards on the ground in 30 carries, but he was always met by Jeff Johnson, Rocky Pugliese, Rob Totten, or one of the other Cougars before he broke loose.

Knudson was chased down by Pugliese after a 47-yard scamper in the closing moments of the first half, saving a certain touchdown. On the previous play, Knudson had carried for 25 yards, but the play was called back for a Saxon holding penalty.

Schaumburg piled up 339 total yards and 19 first downs and couldn't score. Fullback Kevin Standiford, making his first start, gained 64 yards rushing. And in desperation, quarterback Steve Conrad finally located his favorite receiver, Mike Orlowicz, for a last-ditch try at the Cougar goal.

With 1:28 to play and Conant digging in for one last defensive stand, Conrad hit Orlowicz on a fly pattern down the right sideline for 47 yards to the Cougar 16. After three straight incomplete passes, with just 10 seconds left on the clock, Conrad faded back once more, looking for his 6-4, 195-pound pass catcher.

He spotted Orlowicz open near the five-yard line and hit him in the numbers. Orlowicz caught the ball in full stride and headed for the end zone.

He never made it. Brumm pulled him down, just three feet from the goal line. The clock stopped at :02 to relocate the first-down markers and the Schaumburg, out of time outs, lined up quickly for one last play.

But the gun sounded to end the game before Conrad could take the snap.

Johnson, with 71 yards rushing and several tackles, was one of many Conant stars. Another was Walston, who had an interception to add to his TD grab, which was caught in the end zone with three Saxons hanging all over him.

And there was Stompanato, who rushed once for 11 yards before leaving the field in an ambulance with a dislocated shoulder.

ELK GROVE'S Jim Meyer is brought down by Rolling Meadows' Bill Kasper, after picking up a six-yard gain in first-half action Friday night. Elk Grove rallied from a 6-0 deficit and won, 27-6.

Prospect handles Hersey with final surge, 28-10

by KEITH REINHARD

"We made some changes this week," pointed out Gary Grouwinkel Prospect's new head football coach.

The explanation was hardly necessary.

In a complete turnaround from last week's sputtering setback, the Knights roared back from a first half deficit to crunch visiting Hersey Friday night, 24-10.

It was the first time Prospect had ever turned back the Huskies in varsity grid competition and coupled with last week's defeat against St. Viator, marked the first time Hersey had lost back-to-back confrontations since Joe Gliwa took over at helm in 1971.

Grouwinkel had implemented a few other firsts in directing Prospect to its second impressive triumph in three starts this season. "this was the first time (Andy) Loos ever played at halfback and the first start for (Tom) Franson at quarterback. We made a few other adjustments in the line, too, but I think the big change this week was in attitude. The kids really bounced back tonight in fired up way."

The chief flame feeder was Tom Sampson, a defensive tackle. He charged in to block a Hersey punt on the last play of the third stanza. It opened the floodgates to a three-touchdown bonanzaa for the hosts in the final period.

The Knights had gone into the fourth quarter trailing 10-7 on the strength of Bob Schachner's 31-yard field goal. Ironically, Schachner's brother Rich and Grouwinkel had just last year been fellow assistant coaches at Florida State University.

Sampson's aggressiveness, however, left the Knights in control at the enemy one-foot line, and Franson plowed over on the very next play to put his team on top to stay.

Before the period ended, Pat Murphy had scooted 50 yards around the right side for another touchdown and Erik Wilkins made amends for an earlier miscue by gathering in a 10-yard Franson scoring pass.

Prospect was bolstered by a couple of other firsts as well. Receiver Brad Millar, out for football for the first time this fall, played a hand in setting up two of the Knight scores.

And Mike Frushour, out for the first time since his frosh year, contributed four extra point kicks to the Prospect cause as well as a number of excellent punts.

Pardee wary of Falcons' visit

Jack Pardee conceded Friday he was "afraid" about the contest matching his Chicago Bears, unbeaten leaders of the National Football Conference's Central Division, against the twice-beaten Atlanta Falcons Sunday in Soldier Field. There will be no local television.

It will be the 1,000th game played by the Bears since they moved to Chicago from Decatur, Ill., in 1921, and the Bears have invited all Bears' alumni to attend the game and a post-game homecoming celebration.

"We're playing a desperate team," he said, "and anybody playing a desperate team better be ready to play. Atlanta is a key game for us.

"That's the way it is when you're having success. Each week becomes more important. We can't have a let-down or a down week. To play well you've got to practice well and we've got a lot of bumps and bruises this week."

Pardee, who said he was afraid because "we've got to play our best," rated Atlanta as dangerous.

"They have John Gilliam and Al Jenkins, two of the fastest men in the world as wide receivers. Steve Bartkowski can throw the football, and Jim Mitchell is one of the best tight ends playing.

"So they're an explosive team. Yet I know that if we play our best football, we can beat them.

"I hope we're not overconfident. We shouldn't be. Our team can see that we really haven't scratched the surface of how well we can play.

The Bears' defense has been a strong point in defeating Detroit and San Francisco to become the surprise division leaders, and there was concern whether it would be as effective against Atlanta with defensive captain Doug Buffone out for the season after surgery for a ruptured achilles tendon.

Cubs' Madlock is mugged and robbed

NEW YORK — Bill Madlock, the National League's leading hitter, was mugged and robbed "of a few dollars" outside his hotel room Friday afternoon and didn't play for the Cubs in their night game against the Mets.

"I don't want to talk about it, you understand," Madlock said after the Cubs lost, 4-3.

Cubs' Manager Jim Marshall said, "As far as I know, it was an accident at the hotel. I guess attacked would be the best word for it. He was robbed of a few dollars. Apparently it happened very quickly."

Marshall added that, to his knowledge, no weapon was involved.

"We reported it to security (the baseball commissioner's office)," Marshall said. "The incident happened between 4 and 5 p.m. near his room entrance. I found out about it 15 minutes before we left for the ballpark."

Marshall said the attack "probably scared him more than anything. There was not much money involved, nor was he hurt badly. He had a little bump on his head and he told me he didn't feel real good." Madlock, who is batting .336, was kept out of the lineup, Marshall said, because "we just wanted to take every precaution." As for Saturday's game, "He'll have to tell me if he feels 100 per cent."

Rugged battles face Big 10 teams

The path should be rougher today for Big Ten football teams. They attempt to improve upon the conference's second best single day winning performance in 16 years against some of the nation's toughest collegiate rivals.

Last Saturday the Big Ten, which only once in the last 12 years has finished over .500 against nonleague opponents, managed seven wins in 10 games, an average bettered only once, on Sept. 21, 1974, when the Big Ten was 7-1-2.

This week, a 7-3 finish appears unlikely since the Big Ten will be involved in such tossup contests as Baylor at Illinois, Indiana at Washington, Missouri at Ohio State, Washington State at Wisconsin, and Southern California at Purdue.

Only No. 1 ranked Michigan, against Navy, looks like a cinch Big Ten win, and Northwestern at home against Notre Dame and Iowa at home against Penn State would have to pull spectacular upsets to avoid Big Ten losses.

Minnesota is a favorite against Western Michigan and Michigan State a likely choice at North Carolina State, but both could be upset.

Purdue and Illinois might face the toughest tests. The Boilermakers will oppose one of the premier challengers for Heisman Trophy honors in running back Ricky Bell.

Illinois ran its record to 2-0 with a win over highly rated Missouri but Coach Bob Blackman expects a thorough test from Baylor.

Finley hit with 'breach of faith'

NEW YORK — The tempestuous relationship between Oakland A's owner Charlie Finley and five of his six unsigned players blew into a hurricane Friday in reaction to Finley's release of their salary demands and his counter offers.

Jerry Kapstein, bargaining representative for the five, broke off all negotiations with Finley, charging him with a breach of faith in violating an agreement to keep salary figures confidential.

"Last night, I was told Finley released salary figures to the press, allegedly what he was offering Joe Rudi, Don Baylor, Gene Tenace, Rollie Fingers and Bert Campaneris," Kapstein said from his office in Kingston, R.I. "We both knew this would mean an immediate end to negotiations. I was on the phone to the players and their families last night and they unanimously agreed now that Finley has released those figures, there would be no more negotiations between me and Finley. This breach of faith has closed everything down — unless he repudiates those figures."

Fezler surges as Miller falters

NAPA, Calif. — Johnny Miller didn't have as much fun Friday as he did the day before, going from a 63 to an even-par 72 and falling back into a tie for the lead with Forrest Fezler after two rounds of the $175,000 Kaiser International Open.

When Miller got his nine-under course-record 63 in the opening round Thursday, he said playing golf was a lot of fun. After his 72 Friday, he said he played so poorly that he shouldn't have made the cut.

Lions dump Notre Dame with impressive defense

by MIKE KLEIN

Had this been professional football, then Dave Nicolau, Tom Murray, Terry Shanahan, Ken Gillen and Tom McShea all would have deserved a glass of champagne. It was their defensive unit that performed up to St. Viator tradition and rescued the Lions from defeat Friday night at Notre Dame.

Their 7-0 victory started the Lions' East Suburban Catholic title defense in good stead, but it also proved that St. Viator's young and inexperienced offense must discover a method to score points, an aspect of football that has totally escaped them.

Junior receiver Greg Harrison scored the game's only touchdown when he caught John Josten's 10-yard pass with 38 seconds remaining in the first quarter. Lou Citro kicked the seventh point.

The Lions had one other apparent scoring success, when John Gillen ran 11 yards midway during the fourth period. But his touchdown was nullified by holding called against Dan Bucaro. That placed all pressure upon the Lions' defense.

Defensive coach Wayne Fiedler's young men had done so well all night, holding Notre Dame to just one first down and a miserly 31 yards total offense at intermission.

But when the Lions ran just five plays from scrimmage during the third period, their defense finally started to wear down. Notre Dame moved the ball.

A 33-yard pass from Joe Koziol to Dave Mandolini placed Notre Dame at Viator's 37-yard line, even though Ken Gillen blasted Koziol as he released one of his 25 passes that netted 11 completions and 77 yards.

Notre Dame continued to march and had reached St. Viator's 12-yard line as the third quarter ended. The 7-0 lead hung in precarious balance. Linebacker Andy Pedersen rushed hard on third down and Koziol threw incomplete.

That brought Notre Dame to fourth and six at the Lion 10. Pat Francis faded back to throw the halfback pass. Suddenly he was smothered by Murray who blitzed to end the Dons' threat.

St. Viator then moved from its own 19, scored but had Gillen's touchdown nullified with 7:58 remaining and finally stalled for good at the Dons' 18.

Fourteen plays later, 10 of them Koziol passes, and one that went 16 yards to Matt Scussel for a fake punt first down, the Dons faced fourth and four at St. Viator's 20.

Koziol retreated once again and threw his 25th pass, a screen to running back Francis. The reception was made, but Ken Gillen, Shanahan and McShea swarmed upon Francis for a seven yard loss. It preserved St. Viator's victory.

With only seconds remaining, the Lions ground out just their 10th first down on John Gillen's three rushes for 12 yards. Viator had possession as the game ended.

Although many were given major roles on defense, it again was 6-foot-5, 230-pound defensive end Nicolau who brought great trouble to Notre Dame.

Flip-flopping at the defensive ends with Ken Gillen, Nicolau batted away passes, chased down receivers, tossed his blockers into the turf and generally showed how to win.

"I'm sure that Notre Dame wanted to stay away from Nicolau," said Viator coach Jim Lyne, "just as they keyed against (John) Gillen in our offense tonight."

Josten, a junior quarterback, completed eight of his 22 passes for 96 yards. One of them, a fourth period 41-yard reception by Bucaro, led Viator deep into Notre Dame territory from where the Dons began their last march.

Pennant races

Phillies, Royals close in

by United Press International

Earl Williams drove home two runs, including the tie-breaker with a sixth-inning double, to give the Montreal Expos a 3-2 triumph in the second game Friday night after the Philadelphia Phillies reduced their magic number for clinching the National League East pennant to three with a 9-3 triumph in the opener.

The split, coupled with Pittsburgh's split with St. Louis, left the Phillies with a comfortable six-game lead in the NL East with just nine games remaining. The Pirates have only seven games left.

Meanwhile, in the other hot Western Division race over in the American League, the White Sox dealt the Oakland a staggering 4-2 loss in the A's last-ditch bid to catch The Kansas City Royals.

The Royals beat the Texas Rangers 2-1 in 14 innings. They lead the A's by six games with only eight remaining.

Chicago trailed 2-1 entering the eighth when pinch-hitter Pat Kelly opened the inning by doubling down the right field line. Alan Bannister was hit by a pitch and a single to center by Ralph Garr loaded the bases. Jim Spencer forced Kelly at home but Orta followed with a single to center scoring Bannister and Garr. Jack Brohamer's sacrifice fly scored Spencer with the third run of the inning.

Barrios went the distance for Chicago to gain his fifth win against eight losses. He struck out eight and walked three. Reliever Rollie Fingers took the loss, evening his record at 11-11.

In the first Philadelphia game, Greg Luzinski and Mike Schmidt each drove in a pair of runs to spark the Phillies' triumph. Schmidt had two sacrifice flies, while Luzinski had two run-scoring singles.

In the opener, Lou Brock tripled home what proved to be the winning run in the fourth after Mike Tyson hit a three-run inside-the-park homer in the second to boost the Cardinals over the Pirates, 10-6. In the nightcap, Jim Rooker pitched a six-hitter while singling and scoring twice to lead Pittsburgh to a rout of St. Louis, 11-1.

Homer gives Mets triumph

From Herald Wire Service

NEW YORK — Billy Baldwin slammed his first major league home run with one out in the bottom of the ninth inning Friday night to give the New York Mets a 4-3 victory over the Cubs.

Baldwin's homer came off losing reliever Joe Coleman, 2-8, on a 2-1 pitch to give Mets' reliever Skip Lockwood, who worked 1-3 of an inning, his ninth win against seven defeats.

Dave Kingman, who had singled, scored the Mets' first run in the second inning on a bases-loaded wild pitch by Cubs' starter Ray Burris. Ed Kranepool's ninth homer, a solo shot, tied the score 2-2.

New York again tied it 3-3 in the eighth on a double by Felix Millan, a single by Kranepool and Kingman's infield hit.

Pete LaCock had four hits for the Cubs and scored two runs.

Fremd paints impressive picture against Cowboys

by JIM COOK

Like a brush in the hands of an artist, Fremd painted a 21-0 football masterpiece against New Trier West in a rare Friday matinee in Northfield.

At the easel for the Vikings was quarterback Tom Moffett, mixing his attack like oils on a canvas. Fremd's trio of touchdowns appeared convincing, but another was called back and a fifth was deprived by the final gun at the 10-yard line.

"Yes, I think this was our best effort of the season," Fremd head coach Joe Samojedny reflected of the Vikings' 2-1 non-conference record. "We know the physical attributes we have, now it's a matter of finding the right mental attitude and pride to keep us going."

Moffett, electing to throw only six times to spice the Vikings' infantry, clicked on five of the tosses for 87 yards.

His best-thrown ball of the afternoon, though, was a 77-yard strike to split end Doug Ahrens who never broke stride while cruising in for a score. Fremd was detected for offensive pass interference on the other side of the field, however, and the play was wiped out.

"I think much of our success was Moffett's execution and our ability to crack off three, four or five yards on first down," Samojedny explained. "That enables us to use more variety and imagination when you have second and short."

While the Fremd offense was tuning for the Mid-Suburban League North

Tom Philippe

Division opener next week, the defense was equally as impressive, never allowing the winless Cowboys to shade themselves under the Viking goal posts.

"They're big, strong, talented and opportunistic," an appreciative New Trier West coach Bob Naughton conceded. "We were able to make some adjustments on blocking their linebackers at halftime, but as soon as we'd get close, they'd dig in."

Sharing the limelight for the stout Vikings were Greg Lombard with 10 unassisted tackles and Paul Passaglia with seven solos, six assists and an interception on the final play of the game that went for 70 yards before he was forced out of bounds on the Cowboy 10.

Middle linebacker John Foley was involved in 13 tackles and the front line crashed for five quarterback sacks.

Fremd molded the first half like fresh putty, setting the tempo and creating the breaks.

The Vikings made their first appearance in the end zone on the final snap of the first quarter. Bulldozing Tom Philippe capped a four-play, 50-yard march with a 28-yard TD scamper. Mike Freeman added the conversion.

Less than two minutes later, a poor Cowboy snap on a punt attempt was blanked in the end zone by the aggressive Foley. For variety, Moffett tossed to Ahrens for the two-point conversion for a 15-0 halftime tab.

On three occasions in the second half, Fremd's defense forced the frustrated New Trier offense to turn over the ball on downs.

The final tally of the day was a coach's dream — a sustained 15-play drive that covered 78 yards and was capped by Philippe's seven-yard dash. Tom finished as the game's leading rusher with 51 yards and two scores.

"That win against Holy Cross (18-7) last week was really emotional for us," Samojedny said. "It made us grow up in a hurry and start believing in ourselves."

Color the Fremd Vikings ready.

Passes spark Cards

Special to The Herald

KENOSHA, WIS. — The Arlington Cardinals bounced back from a lethargic first half to whip Bradford here Friday night, 27-3.

Arlington unleashed a deadly passing attack in the second half, scoring three touchdowns in the final quarter. Cardinal quarterback Chuck Klein hit on bombs of 34 and 29 yards and set up another with another key pass to give the Heights team its second win against one loss.

"We didn't play very well, really," admitted head coach Chuck Haines. "Unfortunately, they were moving the ball on us."

Bradford was winless in three previous games, having been outscored 83-7. However, in the first quarter the hosts from Wisconsin rolled up nearly 100 yards to Arlington's 15. They also took a 3-0 first-quarter lead on a 26-yard field goal.

"I hate to say it but they (Cards) were looking ahead to the next game," said Haines, referring to the crucial Mid-Suburban League North Division opener against perennial division champ Hersey. "It was in the back of their minds, but we had a discussion at halftime and it cleared things up."

Only what Haines termed "an outstanding play" by Tom North saved Arlington from an embarrassing first-half shutout by a team that had won just two games in three years.

Using a fake field goal play, North ran around left end in the final seconds with so much power "they wouldn't have stopped him with a bulldozer," said Haines. Gary Kempton kicked the first of three extra points.

Arlington's defense came alive in the second half. Bradford fumbled a punt and the Cards took over just 38 yards from the end zone. Rick Gibadol's one-yard touchdown run was set up by a 14-yard pass from Klein to North.

Arlington took over on the Bradford 29 after the defense spoiled a fourth down play. On the first play, Klein combined with North for a 29-yard touchdown.

A short time later, Klein found Kempton open for a 34-yard scoring play.

Arlington rolled up 280 yards with 172 coming on pass plays as Klein completed eight.

"The three non-conference games were very important to us," said Haines. "We needd them."

Martin's ace key's team win in Shrine golf

Paced by Warren Martin's hole-in-one, the team of Glen Oak assistant pro John Long captured the sixth annual DuPage Shrine Pro-Am Golf Tournament Friday at Itasca Country Club.

Martin, who aced the 207-yard 6th hole, and his teammates — Dick Hoskins, Jules Burny, Tommy Kouzmanoff and Long — shot a best ball net 55.

Also firing 55s were the team's of Itasca pro Doug Dahle and Mount Prospect pro Emil Esposito, but they lost in a tiebreaker ruling.

A total of 20 foursomes paid $100 each to play with Illinois professionals. All the proceeds go to Chicago's Shrine Hospital for crippled children.

Arlington, Maine West register soccer wins

Arlington and Maine West posted soccer triumphs Friday with shutouts for goalies Rick Bakas and Tom Schafft.

Kurt Wiebe scored with 4:20 remaining in the first period Friday as Arlington topped Hoffman Estates, 1-0, in a thrilling Mid-Suburban League clash.

The goal was unassisted and held up as Cardinal goaltender Bakas responded with 10 saves.

"It was our first win against a team that has had experience," said Arlington coach Gilles Lonteen.

"This was a big one for us. First time the kids played positions and passed well. Complete unselfishness."

Lonteen praised center halfback Walt Noffsinger and Wiebe but pointed to an overall team effort.

Arlington is now 3-0-1 in the league and 3-1-2 overall. Hoffman Estates won the frosh-soph match, 2-1.

Maine West's Schafft only had to turn back four shots on goal as the Warriors toppled Hersey, 3-0. Jim Cowden worked in goal for Hersey and had 19 saves.

Maine West scored at 12:58 of the first period on a penalty kick by John Bachmeier. Felix Garoz scored 39 seconds into the second period, and Jeff McGlowe counted at 4:14 of the final stanza.

Hersey vs. Prospect

with 5:57 showing in the first quarter. Franson heaves for 24 yards to Millar and 31 yards to Wilkins helped advance the ball to the five, and Loos scampered around left end from there to put Prospect on the scoreboard.

Hersey was quick to retaliate. Dan Vucovich connected on a 28-yard pass to Dino Capasso and Tony Becker rammed 15 yards up the middle.

Vucovich then hooked up with Brian Robertson on a 25-yard TD hurl and Schachner's extra point boot knotted the score at 7-7-.

Late in the second quarter the Huskies bogged down on a 60-yard thrust into night territory and Schachner came on to kick his field goal. He also attempted a 37 yarder in the third quarter. It was the closest thing either side could conjur up to dent the scoreboard until Sampson turned the game around with his blocked punt.

Five prep battles on Saturday slate

by BOB GALLAS

Area football squads will scatter in all directions today in a schedule that features plenty of travel.

Palatine will visit Peoria Central while Buffalo Grove journeys to Cedar Rapids, Iowa to meet Regis High School. Wheeling ventures north where it tangles with Libertyville, and Maine West makes the short, but very important trip to arch-rival Maine South.

In the remaining contest on Saturday's card, Forest View will make the shortest trip, down the road to Hoffman Estates where they'll meet the Hawks. All games are scheduled for 2 p.m.

Coach Jim Morel's Warriors from Maine West are 0-2 so far this year but showed vast improvement in last week's 12-7 loss to a fine Evanston team. The Warriors start their conference season against one of their toughest opponents and will need a super effort, free from mistakes, to get a win.

"We're going to have to stop their running game and keep the ball a bit ourselves," said Morel, whose Warriors played some ball control against Evanston and even had more time than their opponent on offense.

Quarterback Bob Zuccarini, the key to the West attack, has been out of practice all week with a banged up knee but should start. Glen Rollo, a 6-1, 195-pound tackle, has also been out of practice with a pinched nerve, but also should see action.

Adding to the troubles of an already small in numbers west squad is the flu, which has claimed six or seven victims on the team this week, Morel said.

Maine West has threatened to break loose in its first two games. If Zuccarini and his pass receivers finally get their act together, the Warriors could be in line to upset the Hawks, who are a favorite in the Central Suburban League South.

Wheeling will have its work cut out at Libertyville, perhaps the best team Wheeling will face all season. Libertyville pulled out an exciting win over Crystal Lake last week with two touchdown passes of 33 and 48 yards in the final 39 seconds of the game.

Quarterback Tim Matthews is capable of coming up with the big play for Libertyville and has a trio of big receivers, Jay Cunningham (6-0, 162), and Tim Paramski, (6-2, 187) at the ends, and Tom Michel (6-2, 191) at flanker. Libertyville had the best defense in Lake County last year, giving up only 47 points in nine games.

Palatine Coach Arv Herstedt is rightfully disappointed in his offense, which has mustered but one touchdown in two games this year. "I'm planning to start (Jeff) Mosley at quarterback and take a look at Craig Long if Mosley doesn't get it done," said Herstedt. "Long has looked good in the jayvee games. He's produced five touchdowns in two games."

Palatine will face a Peoria Central team that is 1-1 on the season, with a win over East Peoria and a loss to a weak Peoria Woodruff squad.

Buffalo Grove will make the longest trip of the day, all the way to Cedar Rapids for a rematch with a tough Regis team, which topped the Bison 13-6 here last year. A Catholic school, Regis has a host of returning players and is ranked 5th in the state.

So far this season, Regis has won by 21-7 and 20-0 scores. "We'll have to try a lot of different things and, hopefully, confuse them," said Bison coach Grant Blaney.

Forest View (2-0) meets Hoffman (0-2) in the one contest between two locals. Coach Fred Lussow is glad the game is Saturday, instead of Friday.

"We're so banged up right now I'd just as soon not play this week and let our wounds heal," said Lussow. "At least we have an extra day."

Hoffman's 0-2 record doesn't mean Forest View is taking the game lightly. The Falcons remember last year's encounter with Hoffman in which the Hawks came back from a 21-8 halftime deficit to win 31-28.

Unbeaten Hawks to host puzzling Rock Valley

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

Rock Valley's Trojans, who have been clobberd by a good Wright football team and returned the favor to a poor Kennedy-King outfit, will provide undefeated Harper with their third test of the season today at 1:30 on the Hawks' field.

"They looked good against Kennedy-King," said Harper coach John Eliasik. "But against Kennedy-King it's hard to tell."

Rock Valley coach Norm Matzl, agreed, remarking, "Kennedy-King has always been pretty disorganized and they have more talent than they showed.

"If Harper saw us against Wright they didn't see anything.

"We made a lot of mental mistakes right at the beginning and they just stomped on us. We never got anything going."

Harper, coming off a 16-12 win over Illinois Valley that left them 2-0, will thus have their questions about the Trojans answered when it counts most: on the field.

"We're just looking for offensive consistency and a much better game than we showed against Illinois Valley," Eliasik said.

Matzl, who scouted that game, was not impressed with the Harper effort.

"They really didn't deserve to win," the RV coach said. "Illinois Valley played a good, steady ballgame and Harper just managed to pull it out at the end."

Rock Valley's only returning starters on offense are split end Mark Nelson (6-1, 170), guard Paul Smith (6-0, 200) and halfback Larry Woods.

Matzl is looking for an ever improving passing attack from quarterback John Hornbeck and he seems to be getting it.

"John was three-for-23 in the Wright game, then 14-for-23 against Kennedy-King," Matzl said. "Our receivers are not as fast or as big as in the past but we're a young team and our success depends on just how quickly we mature."

Eliasik observed, "They had a semblance of a passing attack against Kennedy-King. But when their quarterback was in trouble he threw the ball up for grabs instead of eating it. I'm hoping we can take advantage of that."

Eliasik expressed concern for Rock Valley's rushing game, something they had trouble stopping at Illinois Valley.

"Rock Valley didn't show any breakaway threats against Kennedy-King," he said. "But that doesn't mean they don't have any.

"Kennedy-King is always quick and they take away the outside very well."

Rock Valley's breakaway threat, if it exists, will come from either Woods or the other halfback, Reggie Jones.

Eliasik is planning to start Jim Atkinson at quarterback after his off-the-bench showing at Illinois Valley.

Rich Hoevel, who did the brunt of the dirty work last week, and Butch Allen will be in the backfield.

Kevin Kristick, with the emegence of Ted Tyk at linebacker, will be moved to wide receiver.

Sportsmen receive salute today

National Hunting and Fishing Day, celebrating its fifth observance today, takes on a local flavor as merchants and clubs join efforts to commend sportsmen for their role in conservation and environment.

The Randhurst Merchants Assn., in cooperation with the Mount Prospect Jaycees, will present a Hunting-Fishing Show on Randhurst Mall.

There will be movies on hunting and fishing, the Explorers will have a program on water safety, the Jaycees will present a gun safety program and there will also be a display from the Illinois Dept. of Conservation.

Joe Sachar of Salmon Unlimited will have his boat "Coho Joe" on the mall from noon to 4 p.m. It will be fully equipped and he will talk with people concerning salmon fishing.

The Rolling Meadows Shopping Center will participate with displays from Vern's Taxidermy of Algonquin and Ed Baggs from Brookfield on the mall.

Their collections will provide shoppers with the opportunity to view many forms of wildlife firsthand. The show can be viewed from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. with both men available for questions.

Representatives from the Northwest Towns Sportsman's Club will also have a display in the mall with information regarding their organizaton. People will have an opportunity to register for a Hunter's Safety Course, Oct. 12 and 19. (See related story)

A fishing boat will be provided by Boat Supermaket to add to the atmosphere. In addition, anyone who visits the displays will receive a four page folder with detailed information on the sportsman's role in conservation.

Temporarily scheduled on the grounds of the Community Church across the street from the shopping center will be a typical campsite erected by Boy Scout Troop 168.

Approximately 25 boys will camp in the three-man backpacking tents from 1 p.m. today until noon Sunday.

In Elk Grove, meanwhile, anglers of all ages will be able to fish for bass, pike, panfish and catfish during a fishing derby at Cosman Lake.

Derby hours are 6:30 a.m. to 10 a.m. at the south end of Cosman Lake, off Leicester Rd. The event is co-sponsored by the Elk Grove Park District, Elk Grove Sportsman's Club and the Elk Grove Estates Homeowners Assn. Prizes will be awarded to the largest fish in each category.

America's hunters and fishermen (and women) spent over $250 million last year alone for conservation and wildlife restoration.

NATIONAL HUNTING and Fishing Day, a salute to our nation's sportsmen, is also a time for teaching and learning. Several local groups have organized displays for the all-day occasion.

FLAMING TOMBS for wildlife are what a carelessly thrown match or cigaret can cause in tinder dry Wisconsin. The majority of the state is under an emergency fire watch.

Emergency fire conditions closing Wisconsin seasons

by JIM COOK
Outdoor Editor

WOODRUFF, Wis—The land of cheese and home of the muskie is about to go up in smoke.

Wisconsin, the beautiful Badger state that proudly advertises its crystal-clear water, magnificent "colorama" fall season and superior hunting prospects, is dry . . . so dry in fact that even the beloved Green Bay Packers are experiencing a drought.

The lack of rain has transformed mighty rivers into rapid-less creeks and creeks into powder. The Rainbow Flowage in north central Wisconsin is down an incredible 12 feet!

Some sand bar structured lakes resemble dunes.

Complicating as well as muddying the picture is the fact that most lakes, in full bloom with a thick carpet of algae on the surface of the water, are still a pea-soup green.

As the plot thickens, so does the bacteria and parasitic algae, creating a foul-smelling aroma and paint-like slime that adheres to oars, boat bottoms and fishing lines. Swimming is virtually impossible.

Relief will come in the form of a killing frost. "We've had two legitimate frosts already," cabin owner Ken Arneson of Arlington Heights said. "The first frost was as early as Aug. 15.

"But the two frosts were only one-night stands and two weeks apart. Their effect was minimal. Even a stiff breeze would help blow some of the algae off the surface."

The highly-flammable condition in the woods, meanwhile, has forced Dept. of Natural Resources Secretary Anthony Earl to initiate emergency closure of hunting and fishing seasons as well as state forests and parks in areas considered high forest fire risks.

Counties closed since last weekend in central Wisconsin are Jackson, Monroe, Wood, Juneau, Adams, Portage, Waushara, Marquette and Green Lake.

There will be a closed season on all lands — public and private — for hunting and fishing of those species for which there is an open season. It does not pertain to the hunting of migratory birds and fishing on the inland lakes and flowages in these nine counties.

In addition, all state park and state forest lands, except designated improved or developed areas such as campgrounds and picnic areas located in the nine counties, are closed.

The hunting and fishing seasons in these nine counties will be reopened on the day following Earl's determination that extreme fire conditions no longer exist.

In counties permitting the opening of the archery deer season last Saturday, hunters were encouraged not to smoke while afield and campfires were expressly forbidden.

The timber is brittle. Maple, sumac, aspen birch and the hardwoods showed little color variety. Leaves seemed categorized into either preturning green or burnt-out brown.

Only occasionally did a flaming crimson maple whet the appetite of the scenery seeker.

Safety courses offered

Safety education courses have evolved slowly, almost apologetically, in contrast to the need created by millions of hunters who annually stalk our nation's fields and woods.

In Illinois, blaze or "hunter orange" has been deemed a mandatory upper outer garment for shooters who are afield during the shotgun deer season.

But the most effective method of reducing shooting accidents afield have been the augmentation of hunter safety courses.

An Illinois law has been passed that states that after July 1, 1976, no hunting license will be issued to any person under 16 years of age unless the hunter presents evidence that he has held a hunting license.

That license must have been issued by the state of Illinois or another state in a prior year or by presenting a certificate of competency (Hunter Safety Certification) issued by the Illinois Dept. of Conservation, Division of Law Enforcement.

Veteran hunters breathed a sigh of relief, figuring that as long as they owned previous licenses, they would have no trouble obtaining future grants to hunt. This is still the case.

But one very important trend, causing ill-informed shooters of all kinds of grief, is that 37 states now require the satisfactory completion of a hunter safety course for an out of state license.

For example, an Illinois hunter who may have held a license for 20 years, would not be eligible to hunt in Colorado, which requires a hunter safety certificate for non-residents of the state.

In order to obtain a Colorado license, the hunter would either have to complete a safety class in Illinois or a more expensive, time-consuming session in Colorado.

Local hunters can avoid the complications and red tape by enrolling in the hunter safety course being offered by Northwest Towns Sportsmen's Club.

The class will be conducted Oct. 12 and 19 from 7:30 p.m. to 11:30 p.m. at the American Legion Hall, Miner and Douglas in Arlington Heights.

"We're offering the course free of charge," chief coordinator and instructor Ray Blum said, "to give both hunters under 16 years of age and veterans an opportunity to obtain their certificate."

The safety education class is certified by the Illinois Dept. on Conservation and persons enrolling will be required to attend the mandatory eight hours of instruction and complete a short test.

The course covers a variety of subjects which include wildlife management, hunter ethics, firearms safety, first aid and field survival techniques.

Those planning to attend the clinic must pre-register by calling one of the following instructors: Ray Blum, Palatine at 358-0707, Hank Schumacher, Arlington Heights at 253-9410, Larry Klippert, Buffalo Grove at 541-7972, Dick Chambers, Barrington at 381-5360 or Will Granzin, Mount Prospect at 253-1688.

The other registration opportunity will be at the Northwest Towns Sportsmen's Club National Hunting and Fishing Day display on the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center Mall today.

Even as a refresher course, the class is well worthwhile.

11 parade to post in rich Futurity

Even with the last-second defection of highly-regarded For The Moment, the $200,000 Arlington-Washington Futurity Stakes at Arlington Park today still has an aura of prestige.

Eleven two-year-old colts and geldings, including one stable coupling, passed the entry box this morning for Saturday's 14th running of the rich event over 6½ furlongs.

For The Moment, a brilliant colt trained by the respected Leroy Jolley, pulled out of the starting gate late Thursday after agreeing to run earlier in the week.

Instead of the Arlington-Washington Futurity, For The Moment, winner of the $119,225 Belmont Futurity and full brother to Honest Pleasure, will appear in the $50,000-added Cowdin Stakes Monday at Belmont.

Thrust into the limelight now are Eagletar and Run Dusty Run, winners in last Saturday's divided running of the Arch Ward Stakes that served as a preparatory outing for the Futurity.

A Canadian import, Sound Reason, although failing to fire (sixth) in the Arch Ward, still carries some of the race's most impressive credentials with six victories, including four stakes conquests.

Founding out the 1976 renewal of the Futurity are Smashing Native, Cornucopian, Bob's Dusty, Steve's Friend, Text, Royal Ski Cheeky Cheetah and First Ambassador. Bob's Dusty and Run Dusty Run will be coupled in the betting interests.

Four starters in the race completed their final tuneup before today's race. Text, second to Eagletar in the second division of the Arch Ward drilled three panels in :35 3/5 handily.

Cornucopian, fresh from his maiden conquest at Arlington, went a handy half mile in :47 2/5 from the gate. The Joe Bollero-trained colt will be piloted by Bill Gavidia in the Futurity.

Steve's Friend was clocked in :48 3/5 handily in four furlongs. Rudy Turcotte has the call aboard Steve's Friend today.

Sound Reason breezed a half mile in :48 3/5 for trainer Gil Rowntree. Robin Platts will be aboard in the Futurity.

All 11 horses will carry identical weights of 122 pounds. Post time for the first race at Arlington Park is 2 p.m.

WANTED
SERIOUS PHEASANT HUNTERS
Kishwaukee Valley Sportsmens Club Offers 700 Acres of Prime Bird Shooting Just 1½ Tollway Hours From Downtown Chicago

Let's face it. Illinois pheasant hunting isn't what it used to be. There's less land to hunt on. Less birds than before. Less of just about everything. That's why we formed the Kishwaukee Valley Sportsmens Club. We wanted the same kind of hunting we enjoyed 20 years ago. We wanted good land that we could come back to year after year. And that's what we have.

6 Months of Controlled Hunting. From October 1st to March 31st we offer the finest upland bird shooting in Illinois. We stock our own pheasants and Hungarian partridge and during duck season our prime flight path location means daily limits for hunting members.

Act Now. Membership Is Limited. Don't get us wrong. We aren't an exclusive club. Far from it in fact. But we aren't about to oversubscribe our membership as some clubs have. We're proud of what we have and we want to make it better not necessarily bigger. So write or call us today for full membership details or to arrange for a free inspection of our land.

Some varieties scarce

Jonathans ready to pick in area apple orchards

Today

It's time to grab that bushel basket and head for the orchards.

The apple-picking season is getting into full swing but several growers are warning that some varieities are less than plentiful.

Juicy, aromatic McIntosh apples are picked clean in some orchards already. Others will not offer their McIntosh to those wanting to pick their own and will only have them for sale in orchard stores.

IN MOST ORCHARDS the tart Jonathan apples will just be ready for picking this weekend.

Red and Golden Delicious will be ready for picking in about a week and the few orchards with Rome Beauties will offer them in early October.

"Apples are scarce; this year's crop is really down," said Crystal Bernard, owner of Jonathan Orchard in Wadsworth, Ill.

"They are wholesaling apples at $6 a bushel this year and it's usually more like $2," she said.

NANCY RAWLINS, owner of Oriole Springs Orchards near Twin Lakes, Wis. agrees: "The supply is limited." Oriole's McIntosh harvest is already gone, and Mrs. Rawlins predicts the Jonathans may be gone by Sunday.

Apple growers say that the two weeks of cold weather last spring is responsible for the slim pickings this fall. Apple trees were literally nipped in the bud by the low temperatures with the McIntosh especially hard hit.

But there are apples out there — bushels full. And the price, although higher than last year, is lower than in the supermarket with a bushel running from $6 to $8.

Apple picking means ladder climbing so pickers are advised to wear comfortable shoes and old clothes. Most orchards have bushel baskets or plastic bags available for customers but you can bring your own and save money.

Nearby orchards include:

• Bell's Orchard, Ill. Rte. 22 about ¼ mile west of U.S. Rte. 12 between Barrington and Lake Zurich. McIntosh available in the Bell's store only. Jonathans and Red Delicious will be available Sept. 28 and Golden Delicious Oct. 5. Price is $6.75 a bushel. Pickers can bring their own bushels or borrow for 50 cents. Hours are 9 a.m. to dusk, seven days a week.

Store hours are 8:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. weekdays and 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. weekends. Apple butter, cider apple vinegar, apple and pecan pies, tarts, strudel, coffeecake, honey, jams and jellies are available at the store. An antique shop and coffee shop have been added. Phone: 438-2211.

• Edward's Orchard, Ill. Rte. 76, two miles north of Poplar Grove near Belvidere. McIntosh will not be available for picking this year but can be purchased at the orchard store. Jonathans are available now and will be for about three weeks. Red and Golden Delicious will be ready for picking Oct. 2.

Hours are from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. seven days a week. Price is $6.70 a bushel in the orchard and $8.40 to $8.60 a bushel in the store. The store, called "The Barn," also offers honey, jelly, apple butter, cold meats, cheese and cider that is made at the orchard. Pickers can bring their own baskets or buy them for 75 cents a piece. Phone: 815-765-2234.

• Heinz Orchards, Atkinson Road, ¾ mile north of Ill. Rte. 176 in Libertyville. Red and Golden Delicious and Jonathans will be ready for picking Oct. 1, 2 and 3.

If any apples are left, the orchard will be open the following weekend to customers. Hours are 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. Price is $6.75 a bushel. Apples will also be sold by the pound. Phone: 362-0074.

• Jonathan Orchard, Ill. Rte. 41 and Kelley Road, Wadsworth, Ill. McIntosh are already in season and Jonathans will be offered for the first time today. Other varieities are available in the Apple Shed, the orchard store.

Hours are from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. seven days a week. Price is $7.50 a bushel or $3.75 a half bushel. Pickers can bring their own bags or purchase them.

The Apple Shed also offers "the best cheese counter east of the Rockies," says owner Crystal Bernard, natural honey produced by the orchard bees, fresh cider, pressed as visitors watch, sausage and other foods. Phone: 244-8090.

• Oriole Spring Orchards, State Line Road, one mile north of Ill. Rte. 173, 3.5 miles south of Twin Lakes.

Jonathans and McIntosh may be gone by Sunday. Red Delicious will be ready for picking today and Golden Delicious will be ready Oct. 2. Hours are 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. seven days a week. Price is $6 a bushel and $3.50 a half bushel. Half bushel bags can be purchased at the orchard for 10 cents.

The orchard smokehouse features cheese, sausages, ham, slab bacon, apple cider and donuts. Pumpkins will be available in October.

• Quig's Orchard, Ill. Rte. 83 about ¼ mile north of Midlothian Road. McIntosh have been picked out and Jonathons are now in season. Red Delicious will be available Thursday. Golden Delicious and Rome Beauties will be ready to pick Oct. 7.

Hours are 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily. Price is 18 cents a pound. The orchard store offers pure cider, donuts, jam, jelly, cheese, eggs, sausage and other foods for sale. Phone: 566-4520.

• Wauconda Orchards, Bonner, Fairfield and Gossel roads, one mile northeast of Wauconda. McIntosh and Jonathans are now being picked. Red Delicious will be ready Thursday and Golden Delicious and Rome Beauties will be available Oct. 7.

Hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. seven days a week. Price is $7.95 for a full bushel and $4.25 for a half bushel. Pickers can bring their own bushel baskets or buy plastic bags at the orchard.

The orchard offers a $1 discount to pickers who come during the week. A country store with antiques is on the grounds. Phone: 526-8553.

World of religion

by David E. Anderson

Concern over cult remains

Even though the Rev. Sun Myung Moon reportedly is moving the base of operations of his controversial Unification Church out of the United States, members of more traditional religions continue to be concerned about the cult's impact on young people.

The latest expression of concern came from the Union of American Hebrew Congregations.

Balfour Brickner, the union's director of the Dept. of Interreligious Affairs, has prepared an information kit on the activities of the Unification Church for use by the Reform Jewish movement's 720 congregations in the United States and Canada.

According to union officials, interest in Brickner's kit has been overwhelming and the first printing of it already is exhausted.

THE KIT brings together a wide variety of resources, some of which may be familiar to those already involved with the Unification Church.

Much of the kit documents the work of Rabbi Maurice Davis, who heads a group called Citizens Engaged in Reuniting Families Inc.

Davis' organization is different from some of the other anticult organizations in it disavows efforts at "rescuing" or "deprogramming" youngsters.

Instead it seeks to find ways in which parents can "best. . .communicate with sons and daughters in the movement," and offers counseling services to parents of cult members who want it.

"They have every right to exist," according to Davis, "so long as they obey the laws of this land."

"BUT WE, too, have rights. We have the right to know them for what they do, to expose them before they get to our kids."

In expressing that fairness, the kit also contains an interesting exchange of letters between Davis and the Unification Church's public relations director, W. Farley Jones.

Jones, in his letter, claims that most of the adherents of the Unification Church are not estranged from their parents, a charge made by oppponents of the cult.

"In the great majority of cases, individuals who join our church come to feel closer to their parents and relate to them more maturely and lovingly than before," Jones said.

IF MOON does move his base of operations out of the United States, the cult's influence undoubtedly will wane.

Despite lavish publicity and advertising campaigns designed to attract thousands of new adherents to the mixture of rightwing politics and Moon's preculiar version of Christianity, the movement has been generally unsuccessful in this country with few people attending the church's patriotic rallies.

Nevertheless, the union's kit is informative and an aid to parents who may be confused about the Unification Church and what it stands for.

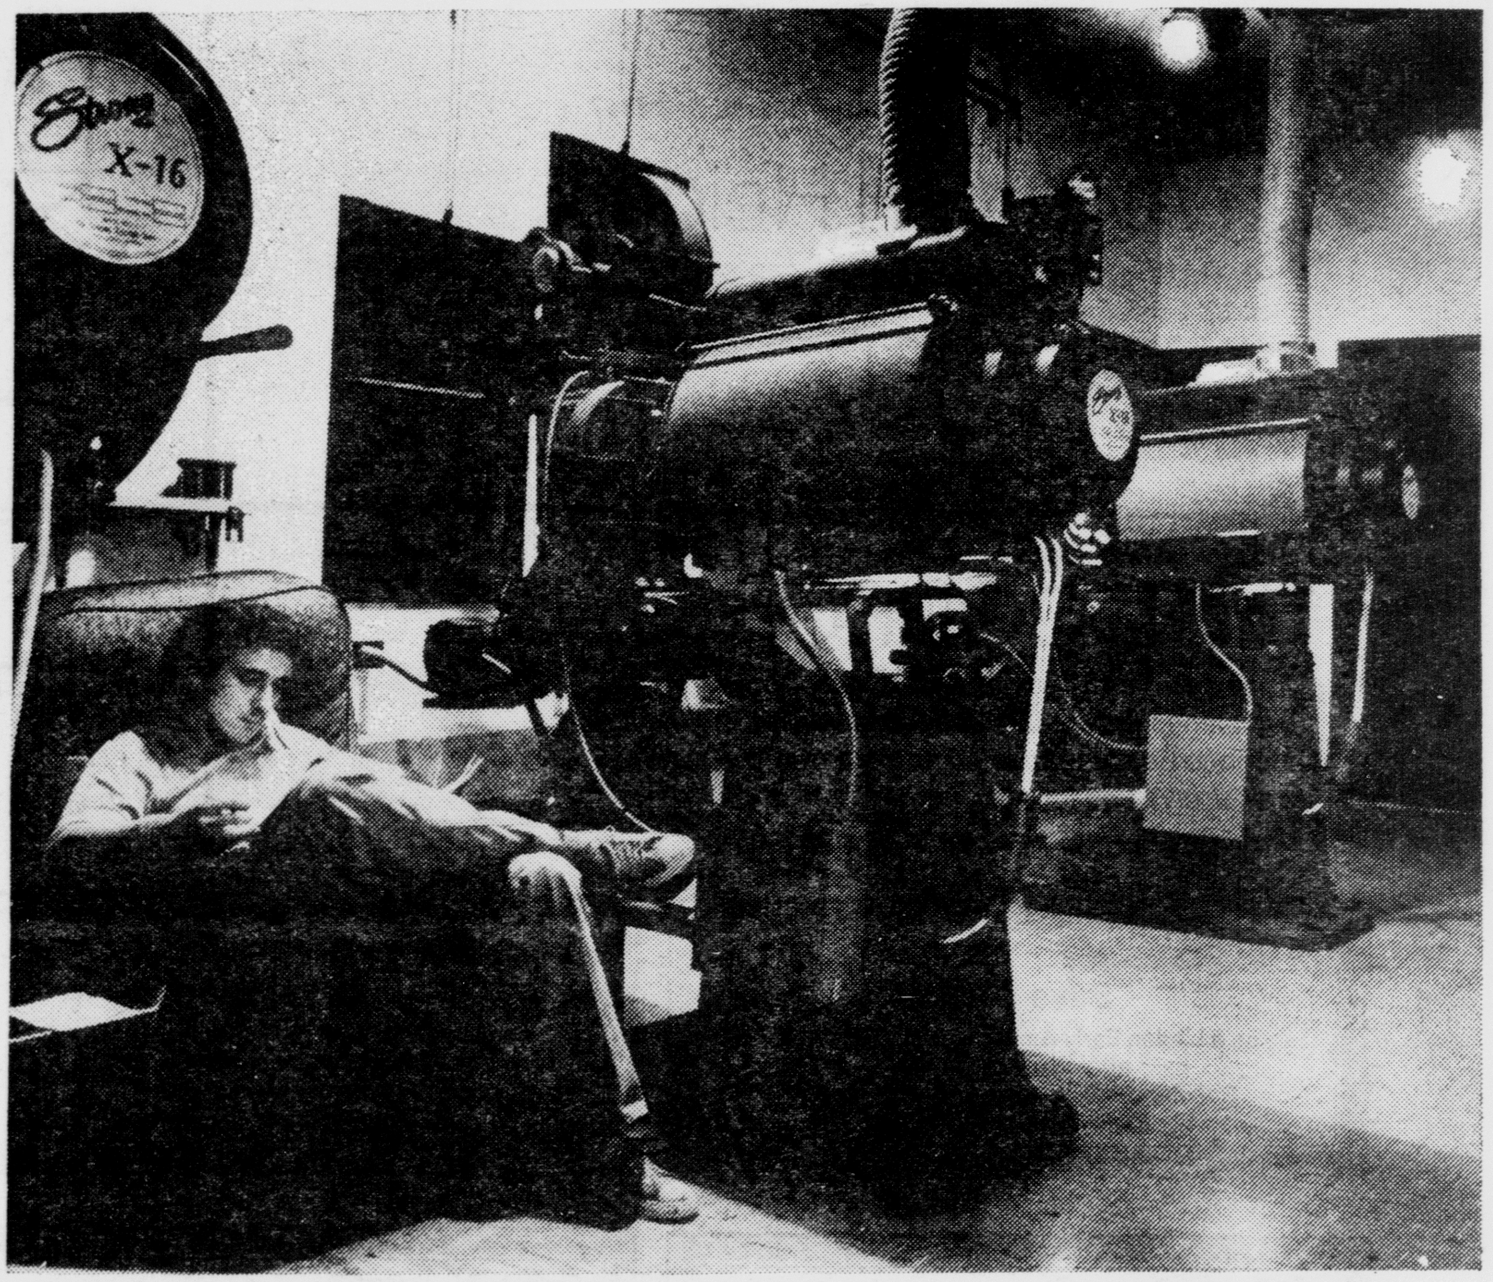
3,000 free movies later — Mike Hall would rather watch TV



Stories by Dave Ibata

Lights! Camera! Action!

Such is the thrilling life of a moviehouse projectionist . . .

Thrilling? Mike Hall disagrees.

"There's really nothing very interesting about this job" says the 25-year-old Palatine man, who works as chief projectionist at the Mount Prospect Cinema, 827 E. Rand Rd., Mount Prospect. "It gets duller and duller."

And what of all those free flicks one sees from a vantage point high above the popcorn munchers, screaming babies and smooching teens?

Hall shrugs. After eight years on the job, he prefers watching television.

"It's so boring," Hall says.

Two of the Cinema's four $4,500 Strong X-16, 35-m.m. projectors grind away in the sound-proof booth. The Cinema is a split-screen, two-house theater which houses 1,000 persons and can show two films simultaneously for two audiences. A minimum of two projectionists are required by union rules. Hall's partner, perhaps equally bored, sits in an easy-chair across the room, watching television.

Hall lounges in his own chair. Today his duties include monitoring the movie "Midway," while his partner takes care of "The Treasure of Matecumbe." Beyond the thick windows of the booth, navies battle for control of the Pacific Ocean while Hall talks, his back to the screen.

"You just have to stay with it," he says.

The job pays well, however odd its hours and inconvenient its weekend shifts. All projectionists in the Chicago metropolitan area are members of Movie Operators Union Local 110, AFL-CIO.

Under the union contract, Hall is paid up to $12 an hour, depending on the type of movie being shown. "Class" films charge higher admission, and projectionists receive higher pay. The opposite is true for kid's matinees, though Hall does not downgrade their appeal.

Citing the success of "Benji" Hall says, "Pictures like that make a lot of money. They're almost as good as X-rated films for making money."

Hall's duties? Set each film and projector up for smooth running; change projectors at the end of every reel — a simple matter of noting cue marks at the end of each 15 to 20-minute segment and stomping a foot-pedal at the proper moment; change reels; rewind film; keep the machines cleaned and oiled; make certain the lights and sound system function properly.

"Machines run at a constant speed, so nothing really breaks," Hall says. "You wait for something to wear out — which takes about 10 years."

Occasionally promoters in Hollywood adopt gimmicks that make life interesting for projectionists. The latest is "Sensurround," a Wall-rumbling sound effect that accompanies the films "Earthquake" and "Midway."

To install Sensurround at the Cinema, RCA technicians installed two low-frequency synthesizer-amplifiers and 16 woofer-type speakers.

When keyed optically by a film, the synthesizers pump out 2,000 watts to produce a series of low-frequency "booms". The extra speakers are essential Hall explains. "If you fed 2,000 watts through the regular speakers, they'd blow out immediately."

On the screen, a quadron of American carrier-based fighter-bombers prepare to demolish the Japanese navy. Anti-aircraft guns open fire — and the Sensurround synthesizers do likewise, shaking the moviehouse with such fierceness the roars pierce the wall that splits the theater in two, causing much puzzlement among those watching the Disney film next door.

One can stand in the projectionists' booth at the Cinema and watch two movies simultaneously. A flick of a switch fills the room with sound, taken direct from a film's optical-magnetic sound track.

Hall reflects on bygone days when the Cinema seated 1,100 people in a single-screen house. "We used to have a big screen, a real nice screen" he says.

In 1973 the theater was split in two, with 500 seats on each side. "That's what everybody's doing, building multiscreen theaters with lower capacity houses," Hall says. "It's been going on for 10 years."

Hall remembers the days of his youth: his father also was a projectionist, and as far back as he can remember, he would go to the theater with his father once a week — just so he could see a new movie, he says. Since then he's viewed at least 3,000 films.

He's also had his share of emergencies. For example, a lamp burns out, and the audience howls indignantly. The projectionist then must dash to the projector; pull off the reel and slap it on the standby machine, get that rolling and come back to the offending projector to change its highly explosive $1,000 xenon lamp.

To add spice to life, sometimes a lamp explodes inside the machine, literally tearing apart lenses, condensers and mirrors. Hall says he has yet to have a lamp blow up in his hands. Projectionists must wear protective clothing when changing the lamps.

Another emergency projectionists watch — or rather, listen for — is a break in the film. Once a break occurs, the machine produces a higher-pitched sound. The projectionist stops the film, opens the machine and, splicing block in hand, cements the break.

Like most projectionists, Hall starts work in the afternoon and gets off at midnight. He has free time early in the day, and many movie operators take day classes at area colleges to prepare for professional, though not necessarily higher-paying, jobs.

Hall shakes his head, saying he should do the same. But he sticks with his machines, year in and out.

He prefers the projectionist's booth, with its television and magazines to the classroom. He also owns his own flying machine — a vintage World War II Stearman biplane. He's a licensed pilot, and during his free time he flies aerobatics out of Sandwich Airport for thrills and dangers unmatched by any number of movies.

It beats working, Hall agrees.

From silent movies to talkies

Albert Skorup has many stories to tell of the days of silent movies and slapstick comedy

Ask Albert Skorup the year Lon Chaney's "Phantom of the Opera" first appeared in Chicago neighborhood movie theaters.

Nineteen-twenty-seven, he'll reply. And he should know. He slapped its reels onto the silent-movie projector when it premiered at the Gaellic Theater on the southwest side of Chicago.

Skorup, a resident of Arlington Heights, has worked as a projectionist on and off since 1927. He's a veteran of the silent era. He also remembers the first "talkies," overnight sensations that used scratchy phonographs to provide sound accompaniment to films.

Skorup has worked dozens of theaters in the Chicago metropolitan area, including the Oriental, Roosevelt and State-Lake downtown as well as countless neighborhood moviehouses and drive-ins.

Today, at age 63, he's settled at the Woodfield Cinema at the Woodfield Shopping Center in Schaumburg. Two years hence he'll retire with a union pension and 45 years of social security "if they have enough money in there to pay us," he says.

Skorup entered show business in 1927 as a 16-year-old assistant to the projectionist at the Gaellic Theater, a 300-seat silent movie house at 47th Street and Western Avenue in Chicago.

In the '20s, Skorup recalls, projectionists worked in tiny, solid, air-tight booths. The fear of disastrous fire, such as that which triggered the panic at the Iroquois Theater in 1903 and killed 602 persons, haunted every theater manager and fire marshal. And they had reason to fear. Early electric projectors exploded; early movie films, manufactured with a nitrate base, exploded. Pity the poor projectionist who would be present when both exploded at once.

The films were so explosive, Skorup says, the Chicago fire marshal banned all reels over the 10-minute, 1,000-foot lengths. One time a reel did explode, singeing the hair from the face of an operator who narrowly escaped serious injury, Skorup recalls.

Skorup looks about him — a spacious, well-ventilated projection room, one of two at Woodfield's two-screen moviehouse. Huge reels of safety film churn on big-barreled, precision-made projectors. "Today, there's no chance of anything burning. No chance," he says.

Skorup points to a rope stretched above each projector. At the end of each rope is a weighted shutter, poised like a guillotine over the windows of the projector booth, through which shoot images that reappear on the screen of the theater below.

"We call them panic windows, but actually they're fire shutters," Skorup says. Should a projector catch fire, the rope burns and the shutter slams shut, hiding the sight of flames from the audience. It's a throwback to the old days. Projection booths still are built with panic-inducing fires in mind.

Skorup worked the booth at the Gaelic until the first talkies came out toward the end of the '20s. Then he was booted out to make room for the phonograph, and was put to work elsewhere around the theater — driving the boss downtown to trade in old films and pick up new ones, changing the marquee three, four times a week.

In comparison, today's moviehouses rarely change films even once a week.

Eight hundred theaters in Cook County cranked out film after film in the 1920s, while the Movie Operators Union, then as now, provided well for its members. "If you make trouble at one theater, they'll get you out," Skorup says. "If you have a job now, you'll have a job later."

Average pay for an operator in the '20s was $95 a week — a respectable sum at the time. "But don't forget, you were working seven days a week," Skorup says. Projectionists' workday started at 6 p.m. on weekdays and at 1 p.m. for weekend matinees and ran until midnight.

Skorup left the movie world shortly before the Great Crash of 1929. He worked as a welder, a welding inspector, a truck driver and a purchasing agent. He got married and had two sons. One died of polio; one, of appendicitis.

A friend sponsored him in 1950 so that he could join the union and reenter the projectionist's booth. He came back at a time television was killing hundreds of moviehouses. He, and 400 hardy metropolitan area theaters, survive to this day.

How many films has he shown? His eyes roll toward the ceiling. "Maybe 10,000," he says.

He likes the pay of his job and says of his years in the booth, "You've got to make a living. They call it a boresome job. And once in a great while I'll watch a movie."

He prefers movies with action, he says — "The Marathon Man," "The French Connection," "The Godfather." He carries fond memories of silent westerns and Chaney's "Phantom of the Opera."

He dislikes some modern films. He grimaces, and gestures at the screen. There plays Mel Brook's "Silent Movie." He says he doesn't care for it; "That's slapstick. Maybe if you're younger you'll like it."

He pauses. He once enjoyed Charlie Chaplin comedies. "That was slapstick, too," he says.

But he was younger, then.

movie guide

Designed to help readers decide which movies they want to see, this guide includes a listing of movies currently playing in the Northwest suburban area plus capsule summaries and comments based on reports of the Independent Film Journal, for selected films of interest to readers.

"The Shootist" — John Wayne mellows into what may prove the finest role of his career, an aging legendary gunfighter who puts his lifelong ideals in order as he waits out the final seven days of his life. It's an absorbing, highly affecting character study though a dearth of action somewhat waters down the total impact. Cast also includes Lauren Bacall, Ron Howard, James Stewart, Richard Boone, Hugh O'Brian and John Carradine. (PG)

"Silent Movie" - Mum's the word from Mel Brooks in this big-budget contemporary silent movie that unleashes a cascade of sight gags, pratfalls and broadly comic set pieces, linked to the connecting story of a minor studio's last-ditch efforts to avoid bankruptcy. Stars Mel Brooks, Marty Feldman and Dom Deluise. (PG)

"Obsession" - A romantic suspense drama themed to a guilt-ridden New Orleans businessman who meets up with an exact double of his late wife 16 years after she and his daughter perished during a kidnap caper after he botched their ransom. Stars Cliff Robertson and Genevieve Bujold. (PG).

"The Return of a Man Called Horse" — Richard Harris returns for more graphically detailed torture in the old west in this visually impressive but sluggishly paced follow-up to "A Man Called Horse." Fur trappers are the bad guys and Harris leads his Indian friends to victory against the foes. (PG)

"Futureworld" — Entertaining sequel to 1973's "Westworld," this time starring Peter Fonda and Blythe Danner as a pair of investigative reporters who stumble on a plan to turn world leaders and opinion makers into brainwashed living robots. (PG).

"The Tenant" — The spirit of a young girl who committed suicide by leaping from her Parisian apartment window possesses the mind and body of the next tenant (Roman Polanski) in Polanski's grimly offbeat but otherwise disappointing horror tale. (R).

ARLINGTON — Arlington Heights - 255-2125 - "The Shootist" (PG).

CATLOW — Barrington - 381-0777 - "The Bad News Bears" (PG).

Work yourself to death —

(or: How to volunteer for a political campaign)

by Wandalyn Rice

On Nov. 2, and in some cases into the early morning hours of Nov. 3, there will be celebrations and wakes held by the thousands of persons across the country who have worked for political candidates.

You've seen them — they are the frazzled but cheering crowds who greet the candidate when he makes a victory speech on television or they are the ones who look mournful and give their hero one last cheer as he reads his concession statement.

That glimpse of the political champaign worker, amidst the champagne, balloons and posters on election night, is misleading, however, because between now and election day, those same people will be working.

The political professionals call it "toiling in the vineyards," but in many ways the jobs don't even have the cachet of grape-picking.

The vineyards of politics are the places for people who stuff envelopes, type letters, make endless telephone calls to people both polite and impolite, and who ring doorbells while carrying grocery sacks filled to the brim with brochures.

Any Northwest suburbanite who wants to sample the long hours, hard work and possible reward of a victory celebration on election night, will find the availability for volunteering almost endless.

The following list can be offered as a partial guide to where to volunteer your services.

— THE TOWNSHIP PARTY ORGANIZATIONS: These organizations form the basis of the regular party structures in the county.

In addition to using their own volunteer workers, most organizations can refer a volunteer to the political campaigns of individual candidates.

The party organizations in the Northwest suburbs are:

— Wheeling Township Republican Organization: office at 1314 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights; phone number 259-0730; committeeman Frend Yonkers.

— Wheeling Township Democratic Organization: phone number for answering service 259-4800; committeeman Donald Norman.

— Elk Grove Township Republican Organization: office at 105 S. Main St., Mount Prospect; phone 392-2580; committeeman Carl Hansen.

— Elk Grove Township Democratic Organization: no office; committeeman William Rose; volunteers should call committeewoman Rene Maddock, 827-5746.

— Palatine Township Republican Organization: office at 331 W. Northwest Hwy., Palatine; phone 358-4248; committeeman Bernie Pedersen.

— Palatine Township Regular Democratic Organization; no party office; volunteers may call Walter Soroka, committeeman, at 358-1536, 359-8208 or 782-2274.

— Palatine Township Democratic Club: an organization set up as a rival to Soroka's and loyal to Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley; office at 230 E. Hicks Pl., Palatine; phone 991-3366.

— Regular Republican Organization of Schaumburg Township: operating out of the office of committeeman State Rep. Donald Totten; phone 882-3851.

— Schaumburg Township Regular Democratic Organization: operating out of the office of committeeman John Morrissey; phone 894-3200.

— Schaumburg Township Democratic Club: like the Palatine Club, loyal to Daley, office 10 N. Roselle Rd., Schaumburg; phone 884-7110.

— Maine Township Regular Republican Organization: office 1566 Miner, Des Plaines; committeeman Philip Raffe; phone 824-8350.

— Maine Township Regular Democratic Organization: office at 8070 Milwaukee Ave., Niles; phone 692-3388; committeeman Nicholas Blase.

THE PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGNS:

— President Ford Committee: phone banks in the Palatine and Elk Grove Republican headquarters (see phone numbers above.) Administrative number for the Elk Grove phone bank, 253-3839. Banks will operate from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily.

— Carter-Mondale campaign headquarters: Five are open in the 10th and 12th Congressional Districts, but not all have had telephones installed. Addresses are: 348 Rand Rd., (Northpoint Shopping Center), Arlington Heights, phone: 253-7050; 4344 Oakton St., Skokie; 1141 Waukegan Rd., Glenview; 615 Town Square Shops, Schaumburg; 610 Laurel, Highland Park, phone: 433-4134. Chicago campaign headquaters: 20 N. Clark St., Chicago, phone: 443-0900.

THE CAMPAIGNS FOR GOVERNOR:

Republican candidate James Thompson has decided not to have a storefront campaign office here. Each of the Republican township organizations has a coordinator in touch with the Thompson campaign who can be reached through the regular organizations. Citizen's for Thompson efforts are separate.

— Citizens for Thompson: Home headquarters in the Northwest suburbs are in Buffalo Grove, Mrs. Bobbie O'Reilly, 537-8387, and Jennifer Lofgren, 541-5229.

— Michael Howlett for Governor: Campaign offices at 1246 Valley Ln., Schaumburg, phone 884-6210, and 7400 N. Milwaukee Ave., Niles, phone 966-1222. The offices handle the entire state-wide Democratic ticket.

THE CONGRESSIONAL CAMPAIGNS: The Northwest suburbs are served by two congressional districts. In the 12th District Republican U. S. Rep. Philip M. Crane is running against his 1972 opponent Democrat Edwin Frank. In the 10th District, Democrat U. S. Rep. Abner Mikva is running against former Republican U. S. Rep. Samuel Young.

— Crane for Congress Committee, office 905 E. Rand Rd., Arlington Heights, phone 259-7505.

— Ed Frank for Congress, office 309 S. Rohlwing Rd., Palatine, 991-4410.

Two Nashvilles

Tennessee:

Country Music U.S.A.

Reviewers of the silver screen have said the hit motion picture "Nashville" is a symbolic representation of America's cross section.

If that be true then Nashville, Tenn., made a perfect movie set for this is a city of diversity and contrast.

Rising out of the backdrop of Tennessee hills, valleys, lakes and meadows are the skyscrapers and multi-million dollar banking and insurance enterprises which have earned the city's title of "Wall Street of the South."

Now in the midst of a massive building boom, Nashville is a city rushing headlong into the future, yet it is also a city filled with remnants of the past. "The Athens of the South," Nashville boasts an exact replica of the Greek Parthenon as well as other examples of Greek architecture such as its state capitol building. It's a city that clings to its Civil War heritage. Ante-bellum mansions in and around the city house the memories of the lost days of Southern aristocracy.

But most of all Nashville is "Country Music U.S.A.," home of the Grand Ole Opry and the Country Music Hall of Fame. Many of America's country and western stars live in Nashville and several sightseeing companies offer bus tours of their spacious homes and estates similar to the tours of the homes of Hollywood stars.

Country music's top entertainers perform each weekend at the Grand Ole Opry which has become an institution in Nashville. The Opry is the world's longest running live radio show, now in its 51st year, and its popularity shows no sign of diminishing. Tickets for reserved seats are sold out months in advance.

Reserved seats for 8 p.m. Friday performances and 6:30 and 9:30 p.m. Saturday performances are $5 each and can be ordered by contacting Grand Ole Opry, Opryland U.S.A., 2809 Opryland Dr., Nashville, Tenn., 37214. 615-889-3060. General admission tickets can be purchased only at the box office and they go on sale for $3 each starting on Tuesdays at 9 a.m. for shows the following weekend. These tickets are also sold rapidly and visitors should plan to purchase them as quickly as possible.

For many years the Grand Ole Opry was held at Ryman Auditorium in downtown Nashville. Built as a religious tabernacle, the building is still open for guided tours each day. Admission is $1.

When the Opry outgrew the Ryman a new home was built at Opryland U.S.A., a 358-acre theme park on the banks of the Cumberland River just nine miles from Nashville. The amusement park opened in 1972 and since 1974 the Grand Ole Opry has held its performances there.

Admission to the park is separate from the Opry itself. Tickets are $7 for adults, $6 for children age 4 to 11 and children three and under are admitted free. Opryland is open daily during the summer and on weekends through Oct. 31.

Opryland is divided into five major music areas, each representative of a period in America's music history. The Opry Plaza belongs to country music and is home for the Grand Ole Opry House and the Roy Acuff Museum. The Hill Country Area highlights folk music in a distinct Appalachian mountain town. America's Jazz and Blues find a home in the New Orleans Area and over in the American West Area it's authentic western music against the background of El Paso, Tex., in the 1880's. The Music of Today Area is rock music's corner of the park where two star-spangled, amplified, rock productions entertain audiences in a 1,000-seat outdoor theater.

Indiana:

Rustic Brown County

If you find yourself traveling along Possum Trot or Grandma Barnes roads, or climbing Weed Patch Hill or Scarce O' Fat Ridge, or visiting the hamlets of Gnaw Bone and Bean Blossom then you know you are drawing near Nashville, Ind., located in the heart of scenic Brown County.

Brown County, with its 300 square miles of peaceful lakes, leafy bowers and winding forest trails, has attracted tourists, artists and lovers of the rustic life to the area for decades.

In Nashville you can ride a horse-drawn carriage through the village or tour the area in open-air train cars pulled by a replica of a steam locomotive of yesteryear. If you're the nautical type launch your outboard on Lake Monroe or row on the sheltered Yellowwood Lake. There's horseback riding on mile after mile of trails and hiking on a variety of nature paths where cardinals, jays and wild canaries can be seen.

Take a scenic drive through the area to explore the primitive Indiana back country scattered with log cabins still in use by Brown County families. In Gnaw Bone you may see the workings of the horse-powered sorghum press or for an overview of the scenery visit Flags of the Nations lookout point.

Art lovers will find three major galleries and several small studios and collections plus many beautifully restored homes of the 1800's in Nashville. Shoppers will spend hours browsing through the many antique, curio, gift and specialty shops.

Brown County was discovered more than a century ago by artists and today it is a thriving colony inhabited by painters, sculptors and craftsmen. Nearly every home and business in Nashville contains the work of local artists many of which have been handed down through the generations.

The story goes that the first artists came to Brown County in 1870 sketching the scenery while hiking or riding by horse and buggy. Around the turn of the century T. C. Steele and Adolph Robert Shulz, co-founders of what is today Brown County's art colony, settled in the area and were quickly followed by other artists, many from the Chicago area.

The T. C. Steele Memorial, open daily eight miles southwest of Nashville, displays some 300 of Steele's finest paintings along with portraits of the artist by other great painters. Visitors may hike over the four main trails that Steele used to travel in search of subjects for his work.

Nashville is the home of two art galleries each boasting four major exhibits — the Brown County Art Gallery, open daily from mid-February to mid-December and the Brown County Art Guild, open daily from early March through mid-December. There are also smaller galleries such as Art Treasure Ltd., and the Paint Box, plus permanent studios of Brown County artists.

A drive through the Brown County countryside will quickly show visitors why the artists chose this part of Indiana as their home. The picture-postcard natural beauty and rustic charm of the area becomes vivid reality while driving on the narrow gravel roads over remote creeks, through the forest's green tunnels, and past log cabins and orchards.

Each issue of the Brown County Almanac, on sale in the area for 50 cents per copy, contains a mapped driving excursion.

The many covered bridges in the area are one of the biggest attractions. The Ramp Bridge, at the north entrance of Brown County State Park, is Indiana's oldest and perhaps best known covered bridge. Built in 1838 in Putnam County west of Indianapolis, the bridge was moved to Brown County in 1932. Ramp Bridge is 90-feet long and the only remaining two-lane bridge in the state. In 1969 the Indiana Department of Natural Resources spent more than $8,000 to repair and restore it.

The favorite bridge for painters and photographers is tucked away southwest of the hamlet of Bean Blossom in the northern part of the county. The 60-foot long bridge was constructed around 1880. The area's newest covered bridge, erected in 1962, stands in the front yard of a private residence crossing the David Branch of the North Fork of Salt Creek.

There are plenty of facilities for hiking and camping in Brown County which is blessed with thousands of acres of state and national parks and forests.

Brown County State Park, 15,678 acres, has more than 450 sites for campers and equestrians. There are seven hiking trails ranging in distance from one mile to 2½ miles plus horseback riding trails and stables.

Yellowwood State Forest, 22,500 acres, has 90 campsites, row-boat rental, hiking and horseback riding trails. In Hoosier National Forest, 17,000 acres, campers are free to stop and clear a spot wherever they wish. The Brown County portion of the national forest contains Nebo Ridge which is being proposed as a federal wilderness area.

A number of events will be held in Brown County this fall. Throughout September and October the Little Nashville Opry, one mile south of Nashville, will give Friday and Saturday night performances featuring names such as Conway Twitty, Barbara Mandrell, Johnny Paycheck, Marty Robbins, and Hank Williams, Jr. Tickets are $3 or $5 on Friday nights and range from $5 to $7 on Saturday nights.

Throughout October free Friday and Saturday afternoon concerts will be given by the Brown County High School band on Nashville's village green. On Oct. 4-6 the Brown County Pioneer Women's Club Bazaar will be held at the Brown County Historical Society; Oct. 17-20 is the annual fall antique show; Oct. 26 and 27 is a muzzle-loading rifle shoot; Oct. 26 is the annual Forest and Wildlife Tour on the A. H. Meyer farm; and Oct. 27 is the annual Old-Time Fiddler's contest at Bill Monroe's Brown County Jamboree.

Other attractions in the Brown County area are:

• The Old Log Jail in Nashville. The original jail, constructed in 1837, featured walls of 18-inch hewn logs. The jail served the county until 1879 when the present log jail was constructed. The last prisoner occupying the jail in 1919 reportedly was permitted to lock himself in and out at will. The jail now contains a museum which displays reminders of the past including chains used on early prisoners, an ancient sewing machine and spinning wheel.

• Browning Mountain has been the site of exploration by scientists and the subject of tall tales by local residents. At the top of the mountain huge pieces of rock are arranged in a rectangular pattern measuring 100 feet by 200 feet. Like England's Stonehenge, they bear evidence of being cut to size and arranged by human inhabitants of a bygone age. One theory is that Indians used the rocks in some sort of tower.

• Brown County Courthouse, in the center of Nashville, is the third building to bear this name. The first, constructed of hewn logs in 1837, was used until 1853 when a larger brick building was erected. The building burned down in 1873. The present red brick building was built on the foundations of the old structure in 1874-75.

• Liars Bench on the courthouse lawn. The original bench, destroyed on Halloween in 1929, was the county seat of wisdom for local philosophers. Tall tales were exchanged and audiences sometimes gathered. Occasionally the man at the end of the bench was pushed off to make room for a newcomer. Today there are still benches on the courthouse lawn, where tourists rest unaware of the tradition.

• Nashville Community Building located at the rear of the courthouse, is an excellent example of log construction. Built 100 years ago with timbers extending more than 60 feet, it was originally a stage station along the old Michigan Road. It was purchased in 1934 for removal to Brown County.

Covered bridges delight lovers of the rustic life in Brown County.

A search for paradise

"THE NAVIGATOR"
by MORRIS WEST
William Morrow & Co., $8.95

by Tom Von Malder

Morris West is a prolific and entertaining writer (Shoes of the Fisherman, The Devil's Advocate and Harlequin). He has slipped slightly, though, with this new novel of a very, very old subject — man's search for paradise regained.

The first third of the book is the most interesting as it deals with Gunnar Thorkild, a college professor of mixed background. He is part Polynesian and thus through his grandfather, a tribal navigator, knows of the legendary island graveyard of the navigators.

The tension between Thorkild's more Westernized and Polynesian backgrounds gives life to the first half of the book, as does the explanations of the navigator customs and belief and a supporting cast of likeable characters.

Thorkild mounts an expedition to find the island and selects a veritable melting pot of people to accompany him. Then things get predictable, such as the ship wreck.

Once stranded on the island the novel becomes mostly soap opera, with the expected sexual and personality problems. At times, the complications are so thick they seem ludicrous and heavy-handed. An example is when Yoko Nagamuna says "I'm in love with Hernan Castillo — and he couldn't care less because he's in love with Ellen Ching and she couldn't care less either, because she's got Franz Harsanyi but she'd rather have me, and I'm not interested."

There are deaths and births as the characters move toward better understanding one another and their existence. But it's unconvincing. More acceptable is Thorkild's comment, "We've discovered one big truth. The earthly paradise is our oldest and biggest illusion. Even if it existed, we'd foul it up. However low the fruit hangs, we'll always cry for the one that's out of reach."

Have you heard the news? Oct. 9 has been designated "National Chess Day." Do you believe that? What will they think of next?

In issuing the proclamation, President Gerald R. Ford put his signature to the following statement: ". . . chess is a game that sharpens the mind, tests human faculties and encourages healthy competition. It has captivated the attention of players and spectators worldwide and will continue to do so as long as competition and excellence challenge mankind."

Right on! Mr. President. But do you know that, a whole bicentennial ago, another American, Benjamin Franklin by name also extolled the royal game in his essay "The Morals of Chess."

Old Ben had this to say: "The game of Chess is not merely an idle amusement. Several very valuable qualities of the mind, useful in the course of human life, are to be acquired or strengthened by it, so as to become habits, ready on all occasions. For life is a kind of chess . . ."

I've got an idea. Let's celebrate the Bicentennial and "National Chess Day" with a Gerry Ford-Jimmy Carter chess match! Let the better politician win. Who needs debates and elections anyway?

And should the match end in a standoff, let them play backgammon. Can you imagine the headline: " 'Snake-eyes' wins the presidency!"

Michael Rhode has just enhanced his reputation as one of the best young chess players in the world by winning the International Youth Tournament in Belgium. Boris Taborov, the Soviet entry finished second.

An example of Rhode's ability is the game he played last year with U. S. Champion Walter Browne.

In the position above (SOLVE-IT) Rhode effected a skillful simplification and wrapped up the victory. His two-pawn advantage was decisive.

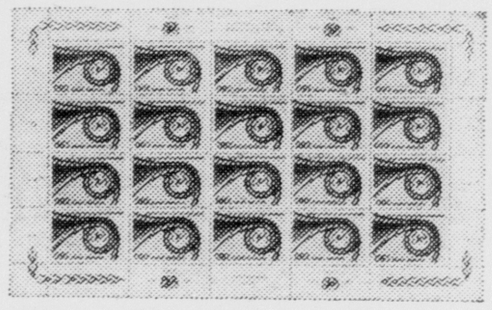
U. N. Postal Administration commemoratives



On Oct. 8, the United Nations Postal Administration (UNPA) will mark its 25th anniversary with the release of commemorative stamps, in four denominations, and a souvenir folder.

A postal agreement, signed in 1951 by the United Nations and the United States, permitted the United Nations to issue its own stamps in U. S. denominations for use only on mail dispatched from UN Headquarters in New York.

A similar agreement was signed between the UN and the Swiss government in 1968 resulting in the issue of UN stamps in Swiss denominations, valid for postage only from the UN Office in Geneva.

The 25th anniversary stamps include a U. S. 13-cent and 31-cent denomination and a Swiss F.s.0,80 and F.s.1,10 denomination. The stamps will be printed by

by Bernadine M. Rechner

Courvoisier S. A. Switzerland in sheets of 20, rather than the usual 50, with the New York adhesive differing in design from the Swiss issue.

The 40 page souvenir folder includes all the New York and Geneva stamps issued between January and October, 1976; an introduction by the Secretary-General, an 8-page history of the UNPA and a separate color reproduction of UN stamps and stationery issued from 1951 to 1976. (This folder does not replace the annual souvenir folders which will be released in November.)

The folders are available for $5.20 each from the "UNPA, P. O. Box 5900, Grand Central Station, New York, N. Y. 10017."

Collectors desiring UN/NY first day cancellations should send their cover to "UNPA, FDC Unit, P. O. Box 1586, Grand Central Station, New York, N. Y. 10017."

Collectors desiring UN/Swiss first day cancellations must send their covers to "UNPA, Palais des Nations, Geneva, Switzerland."

Official UN first day covers are available in both New York and Geneva cancellations from the New York headquarters for the cost of the stamp affixed plus a 20-cent envelope and handling charge per cover. (U. S. equivalent of the F.s.0,80 is 31-cents; of the F.s.1,10, 43-cents).

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

North knew his partner well enough to be sure that he would not open four hearts with a suit headed by just ace-king unless he held eight of them. Hence, after South showed two kings in response to the Blackwood five no-trump. North could count 12 top tricks. He bid seven on the theory that when there are 12 top tricks there is always a good play for the 13th.

South held the right king so everything looked rosy. He discarded his deuce of diamonds on the ace of clubs, played a couple of rounds of trumps and planked down his king of diamonds. He intended to claim if both opponents followed since he could handle any 4-1 or 3-2 diamond break, but West showed out. All of a sudden the cinch grand slam seemed doomed to failure.

South saw one extra chance. He led a spade to dummy's ace and ran off all his trumps to come down to a two-card ending. He held the four of diamonds and 10 of spades, dummy the ace-jack of diamonds and poor East a fist full of worms. He had started with the king-queen and jack of spades and was forced to discard the last one of them to keep the guard for his queen of diamonds.

Opening lead — K ♣

ARIES [March 21-April 19]: You may feel like a taxi trapped in a tunnel, first part of week, Ari. If so, then the least you can do is turn-off your meter. It's hardly likely that your passenger will run away. Finally, traffic begins to move and by last day you emerge into the bright October sunshine. Bask.

TAURUS [April 20-May 20]: One who is past master at manipulation may try every known trick to get you to change your mind concerning personal decision. Stand firm. If you become discombobulated, Taurus, you end week playing classic role of "patsy."

GEMINI [May 21-June 20]: Loved one seeks but does not find. By accident (or is it by design?) you two seek to elude each other. Don't settle for a dime's worth of happiness, Gem, when you have the key to the U. S. Mint in your pocket. Message clears.

CANCER [June 21-July 22]: Energy returns and career advance can be made. Mogul observes from a distance. Personal affairs tend to tangle, Moonbaby, as week draws to a close. Discretion is paramount. Behave yourself. And, oh yes, stay OUT of the inns.

LEO [July 23-August 22]: As September draws to a crazy close, you find yourself on emotional trampoline. Mood changes highlighted. Beware of what seems to be facile solution to complex problem, Leo. Turn thumbs down. Answer comes later.

VIRGO [August 23-September 22]: In the realm of emotion, Virgo, you are considered difficult to stir. Your partner must be truly gifted to warm you enough for total surrender. However, once ignited (like metal), you burn at a white heat . . . and it takes FOREVER for you to cool down.

Olga knows

LIBRA [September 23-October 22]: With effort, Libra, a delicate balance can be achieved between emotion and intellect. Just promise Olga that you won't try to walk the wire without a net. Message from afar highlighted. Week ends on key of C, for celebrate. Goody.

SCORPIO [October 23-November 21]: Talk less and do more, Scorp. Temper tantrums should be followed by marvelous make-up sessions. Libra sashays into picture before week is over, and you hear your very own "September Song."

SAGITTARIUS [November 22-December 21]: When things are tough (and they often are), you manage SOMEHOW to maintain a pleasant facade. You have a reservoir of strength that few can match, Saj. Week staggers to a clamorous close on key of D, for drabble.

CAPRICORN [December 22-January 19]: You usually keep a rather tight rein on your emotions, Cap. However, once you are able to let go of your fears with one you trust, you can be one of the most creative lovers in the Zodiac. Your cool facade apt to melt this week. Keep mop handy.

AQUARIUS [January 20-February 18]: Joint project highlighted. Success lies in keeping an open mind and closed wallet. Libra appears on the horizon. Sneak away with sweetie before week is over and have a little party. Week ends with a coo.

PISCES [February 19-March 20]: Daily associate apt to drive you to distraction, Pisces my pet, so pack survival kit. If you have getaway in mind, plan it with great care, and DON'T leave a telltale trail of breadcrumbs in your wake. Week ends rather weakly.

Johnny Carson celebrates No. 15

by Vernon Scott

No single entertainer in history has had more television exposure than Johnny Carson who begins his 15th year with the "Tonight Show" next week.

He made his debut on the show Oct. 1, 1962.

Since then Johnny has done roughly 4,000 shows of 90 minutes each, accounting for some 24 hours a month on the air.

Not Arthur Godfrey, Lucille Ball, Milton Berle, Lawrence Welk nor any other entertainer come close to Carson for network time on camera.

In addition to his current long run, Johnny spent five years as master of ceremonies with the old "Who Do You Trust?" game show beginning in 1956.

All told, he has logged almost 20 consecutive years of daily television exposure.

Carson's unique longevity is due in no small part to his built-in personal privacy. The man's enigmatic charm is as responsible as his razor-like wit for his popularity. He's a puzzle and a mystery who intrigues the average viewer.

No one at NBC knows Carson's true feelings on any important matter, save tough contractual terms. Even his few close friends are at a loss to capsulize Johnny's personality, his likes and dislikes.

Viewers are unable to perceive Carson's political preferences. He laces into both republicans and Democrats with equal fervor.

"I don't think anyone can tell which side I'm on. I couldn't use political jokes effectively if I appeared to be biased.

"I try to avoid serious discussions or interviews, expounding my own ideas or probing too deeply into dull subjects with my guests. We're not a talk show to begin with."

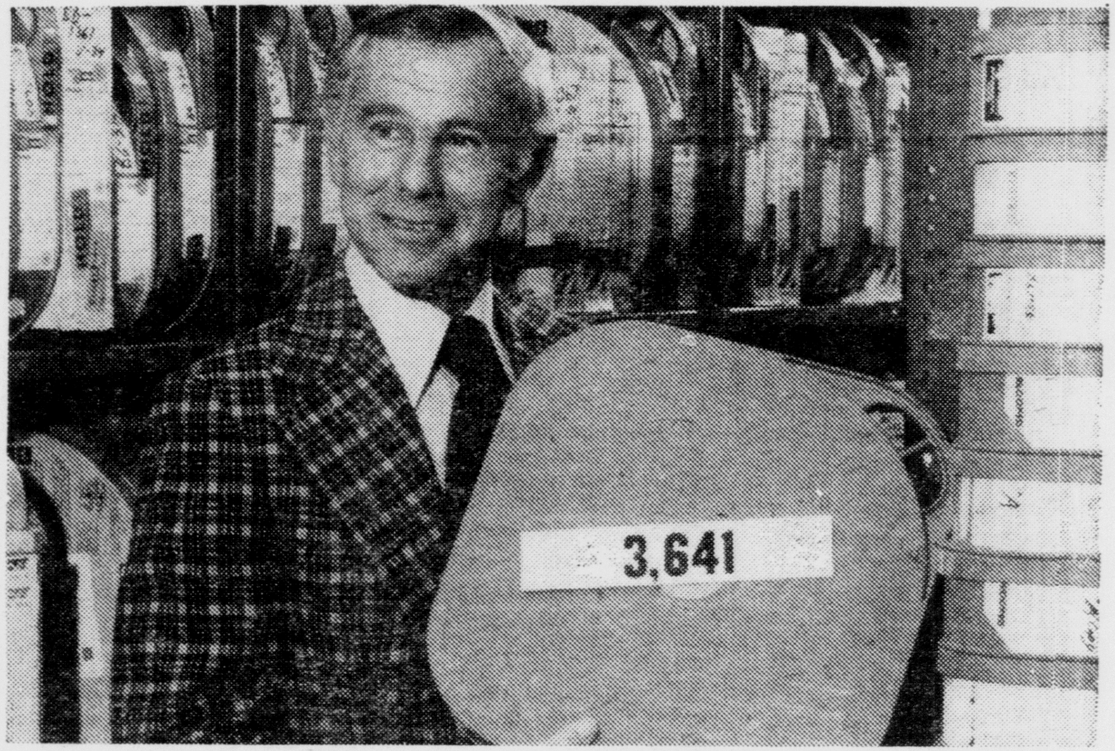
Carson is aware of his personal reserve, of holding something back from the audience. He's avoided the emotional outbursts that characterized Jack Paar and Godfrey when they had their own shows.

Luck has played a small role in the Carson success story. His show reaps $40 million a year for NBC. One may rest assured that Johnny is paid more than 10 per cent of that amount annually.

Of his apparent endless appeal to late night viewers, Johnny has a pragmatic explanation:

"I'm a professional entertainer, I don't wear my heart on my sleeve. I'm a comedian and I don't make the mistake of attempting to solve social problems in the country.

"Jack Benny, Bob Hope and Ed Sullivan never fell into that trap either. You've got to keep your perspective. Someone like myself is a commodity to be sold like anything else.



Jonnny Carson marks the 14th anniversary of "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson" with a two-hour special at 10:30 p.m.

"It would seem the show would get easier to do as the years go by. But it doesn't. You must bring a certain vitality to every show and have fun with what you're doing. You have to keep pushing yourself.

"Nobody can expect a terrific show five nights a week year after year. Some are great, some are so-so and some are a little off. I'm aware of the good ones as well as the not-so-good. A lot depends on our guests.

"We have 15 to 20 guests a week. And there aren't that many new, stimulating people around. I'm constantly on the lookout for interesting new personalities from all walks of life — politics, the arts, medicine, science.

"No. It sure doesn't get easier."

Johnny's 15th anniversary show Oct. 1 will feature highlights from previous programs. Johnny will do his monologue but there will be no guests on hand.

Carson is saddened that the network destroyed tapes of hundreds of his early shows. But in recent years all of the programs have been preserved on cassettes.

Asked if he has any plans to retire, Carson shook his head negatively.

"Retire to what?" he asked. "I have some business interests and I could play a lot of tennis. But work is the most important thing in a man's life.

"No, I haven't any thoughts about quitting I like what Jimmy Durante once said, 'The audience will tell you when to retire — they don't show up.' "

Jack Nicholson

Q. In "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," did Jack Nicholson get a real shock treatment or was that wonderful acting? M.R.

A. He was acting. There are limits on what directors can do to animals and actors (in that order) for the sake of realism.

Q. On any of the beer commercials they never drink the beer they have advertised. Aren't they allowed to drink on TV? E.A.

A. That's right. It's against the code to actually drink it. In the early days of TV they did, but at that time an entire movie was sponsored by the same beer and after a few commercial breaks the pitchman began to feel the effects, so, the practice was outlawed.

Q. I've heard that the mechanical shark used in the movie "Jaws" was nicknamed Bruce. Is this true? L.M.

A. Yes. Everything and everybody has to be called something, why not Bruce.

Q. Tell me if Dean Martin is going to be on TV anymore? G.W.

A. He'll still do his occasional "roasts" and singing specials.

Dean Martin

Jim Hutton

Q. Why in the world is NBC taking off "Ellery Queen"? It's one of the few good shows on TV.

A. Well, look at it this way; NBC's executive thinking propelled that network to third place in the ratings last season. When you consider that, doesn't it make sense to cancel "Ellery"?

Q. Did Richard Thomas of "The Waltons" and his wife ever have the baby they were expecting? M.L.

A. Yes, they had a son, Richard Francisco Thomas, on August 8.

Right now millions of Americans are being forced to sit back and rock their lives away. Simply because they're older. Stop and think about it!

It's going to happen to you. You're going to be "older" someday. Maybe sooner than you think.

And you're going to have to face the same problems that exist today. Unless you start changing your attitudes about aging now. Get rid of your stereotypes.

Try and imagine what you'll be like. What you'll want to do. What you'll want to contribute. That's all we ask.

But you'd better hurry.

If you don't want to take your old age sitting down, get off your rocker and separate the facts from the myths.

Now.
